Fiancee of Millionaire Orphan Arrives; Mrs. Shepherd Embraces Her Husband in Courtroom.

Chicago, May 18.—With the first formal question which broke the silence of Judge Thomas Lynch's courtroom Monday, William D. Shepherd knew that justice sought his life in payment for the life of Billy McClintock, of whose murder he is accused.

"Have you any conscientious scruples against infliction of the death penalty?" was the routine query which George E. Gorman, first assistant state's attorney, prosecuting the case, asked of the first venireman to be called.

To Shepherd, sitting sullen-faced, loose-lipped, the center of all eyes in the courtroom, the words answered beyond doubt the problem which has confronted him since his arrest. They told him that the state's fight would be for the death penalty. A weak smile twisted his lips, and his eyes hardened.

Pitted against Shepherd's denial of all charges was State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe, iron-jawed, raspy-voiced, stocky personification of an avenging justice. Crowe is in the background of the fight, with Gorman his field commander. The criminal court was crowded. Hundreds besieged the doors. In an adjacent room telegraph instruments were clicking out the story.

Wife Greets Husband.

Julia Shepherd had kissed her husband in a fond embrace before the gaveling court. She, pink-faced "Dr." C. C. Feiman was present, ready to tell his story of a $100,000 bribe tendered when he says he furnished Shepherd with arms.

Isabelle Pope, fiancée of Billy McClintock, had arrived in the morning, prepared to tell of alleged ill feeling between the Shepherds and how they had cared for since childhood. A panel of 100 veniremen was waiting. The bitter fight, with a life and a million at stake, began.

Venireman after venireman was rejected, in the slow pull of empaneling a jury, on declaring opposition to capital punishment.

At a late hour two men had been tentatively accepted by both the state and the prosecution. It was stated at the courtroom that there were indications that the selection of a jury

By a vote of 22 to 11 city council Monday afternoon reelected W. E. Price, city purchasing agent over his opponent, W. E. Vance, former warrant clerk in the office of former Governor Thomas W. Hardwick. No close fight over this position developed as had been predicted. Mr. Price, being reelected by a two-to-one vote.

Mr. Price was nominated for the place by Alderman Armistead, who made a short speech in which he said Price had made a splendid record in a trying position, was honest, faithful and courageous in the face of opposition of the city. Councilman Vaughan, chairman of the city purchasing committee, seconded the nomination.

Vance was named as a candidate by Councilman Soderbergh, who declared Mr. Vance came highly recommended.

LIGHTS OF NEW YORK

As Seen by—
Pierre Van Paassen

New York, May 18.—Strolling along: A puny little man with glasses carrying a fluffy lap dog for a heavily-veiled Amazon, with a chin of three stories; bare-headed young men wearing goggles as a substitute for three years in college; a flapper who starts icily; another who hums to herself; a speak-to-me-with-thine eyes flirtation in an ice cream parlor; two tall provincial ladies gazing up at a skyscraper; a party of immigrants, the women wearing colored head kerchiefs; a fireman and a policeman swapping yarns in Irish brogue; a bum looking at the manipulations of a flag-jack artist in a Child's restaurant; a fellow in overalls carrying a tennis racket; faces, empty, vacant, rapid, staring faces, criminal mugs, soulful faces, sad faces and just ordinary faces, rivers and oceans of them.

Some time or other Broadway begins to pall. All the great lights who have shed lustre of one kind or other in New York during the past decade finally think of abandoning the white way and hide themselves to the serene atmosphere of the country.

Paul Whiteman, the jazz king, has bought a ranch in Texas; Floyd Dell lives in an old farm house in Westchester county, New York; Peter B. Kyne is far away; F. O. Ziegfeld thinks of going into the orange growing business after raising peaches.

Still they all must come back for an occasional peek at New York. It may pall, but still it has a fascination.

You can tell the young German commercial travelers who are getting chicker with each boulevard by the peculiar block of their hats. They are an aggressive looking lot and, according to reports, they are getting business. Something about their square-cut clothes, their steel-gray eyes and unflinching, straightforward manners inspires confidence.

The French millinery experts and couturiers are also successful, but their method of approach is quite different. They dance, prouette, smile, smirk bow, scrape and make themselves agreeable.

To every man his own way.

Energetic young fellows in gold braided uniforms plead with the weary pedestrian to enter one of the big busses parked along Times Square and take a trip to wicked Chinatown and the Bowery. To add a little oriental atmosphere the cars are illuminated with the soft glow of paper lanterns.

8 JURORS CHOSEN IN TAYLOR CASE

Second Trial of Youths
Who Confessed to Killing of H. F. Underwood
Gets Under Way.

Columbus, Ga., May 18.—(Special.) When court adjourned this afternoon until Tuesday morning, eight jurors had been selected in the second trial of Willie Jones and Gervie Bloodworth, confessed slayers of H. F. Underwood, which opened here today.

Selection of a jury was slow and tedious. Lists of jurors were exhausted twice. Of the jurors examined, 116 were disqualified, the majority either being opposed to capital punishment or had formed an opinion.

A venire of 180 names was drawn to report tomorrow.

Severance Not Asked.

Defense counsel, contrary to expectations of court officials, did not move for severance. They did demand a panel of 96 jurors at first, however, and some delay in the courtroom was occasioned as bailiffs were dispatched for extras to augment the panel of 81 which answered from the special venire of 85 drawn last Friday.

Jones, blonde and tall, and Bloodworth, dark of hair and complexion and of smaller stature, wore red carnations as they entered the courtroom. Mr. and Mrs. Jim Jones of Taylor county, were with their son, Willie, and Willie's sweetheart, Miss Elizabeth Moon, was there too. Bloodworth's mother, Mrs. Dowd Fullerton, also was with her son.

Judge C. E. Roop, of the Coweta circuit, who is presiding in the case, allowed the motion of the defense for

DENIES KNOWING

Former Executive Told
That His Memory Is
Faulty About Things

TOPEKA, Kan., May 18.—After forcing Jonathan M. Davis, former governor, charged with seeking a bribe, to admit as untrue several parts of a statement given this press to explain why his son, Russell G. Davis, had delivered a pardon to Fred Pollman, a forger, C. B. Griffith, attorney general, pressed the defendant late today to admit that a "Peterson route" really was mentioned before the executive expressed a willingness to parole Walter Grundy, an embezzler.

The former governor, however, held his ground.

A. L. Oswald, Hutchinson attorney, who represented Grundy in a parole application, had testified that Davis was cold to appeals for executive clemency until Oswald said: "Well, I guess the only thing to do is to take the Peterson route."

The phrase "Peterson route," Oswald declared, informed Davis that Oswald had heard pardons were being sold through the office of Cal J. Peterson, bank commissioner.

Suggestion of the "Peterson route," according to Oswald's testimony, led to the solicitation of a $2,500 bribe by both the governor and Peterson.

Davis branded as false the statement that the words "Peterson route" ever were used by Oswald in any conversation with him.

"Why did you ask Oswald whether he knew Peterson?"

"I don't recollect," replied Davis. "You are sure that mention of the 'Peterson route' didn't prompt that question?"

"Yes, I am."

Memory Questioned.

"Then if your recollection is good as to nothing being said about the 'Peterson route,' why isn't it so good when you are asked why you asked Oswald: 'Do you know Peterson?'"

"I am sure I can't recollect why I asked Oswald that—may be I didn't ask it—I don't recollect."

"Governor, your recollection is good about some things, but not so good about things that may be detrimental to your case, isn't it?"

CHAMBER TO HEAR GEORGE ON TAXES

Junior Senator Will Address Members on National and State Levies
Wednesday.

United States Senator Walter F. George will address members of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce Wednesday at 12:30 o'clock in hall number 2 of the chamber building. Senator George's subject will be "Taxation—National and State—and the Relation One Should Bear to the Other."

As the question of taxation is now uppermost in Georgia and will undoubtedly be the chief theme of discussion at the approaching session of the general assembly, Senator George's address at this time is particularly opportune.

Several days ago President W. R. C. Smith, of the chamber, and Norman C. Miller, chairman of the committee in charge of speakers, invited Senator George to speak at the weekly meeting of the chamber.

The address is scheduled to be of unusual interest, for as a member of the ways and means committee of the United States senate, shaping of all tax legislation in the senate, Senator George has given the subject careful study both from national and state viewpoints.

What he says, therefore, at this time will bear not only upon the subject of tax legislation by congress at its next session, but also upon tax legislation by the general assembly of Georgia this summer.

The hall in which Senator George will speak will accommodate an audience of 700, and it is expected that every seat will be occupied Wednesday by members of the chamber of commerce and their friends who will be interested in hearing Senator George.

ATLANTA TO INVITE IMPERIAL COUNCIL

Committee Named and Mosque Project Will Be Pushed, According to Yaarab Temple Plans.

Yaarab temple of the Mystic Shrine will rush plans for erection of its palatial new mosque opposite the Georgian Terrace, and at the imperial session in Los Angeles in June will present this city's invitation to the Shrine to hold its 1927 national session here.

These interesting developments were announced Monday night at a largely-attended business session in the Lyric theater, where the nobility of the temple enthusiastically indorsed immediate action in building a mosque on the lot owned by the temple at Peachtree and Kimball streets, and authorized Potentate Charles A. Bowen to appoint a ways and means committee to decide the amount to be spent on the building and method of raising the money.

Members of this committee announced are Potentate Charles A. Bowen, Past Potentate Henry C. Heinz, Treasurer James S. Floyd, Recorder George E. Argard, Assistant Rabbah Tom C. Law and Nobles William A. Muller and William C. Wardlaw.

The building committee and other committees necessary for expediting the work will be appointed as soon as the ways and means committee makes its report.

Tentative plans consider the erection of a main auditorium, up to date in every particular, that will seat 10,000 people, with offices for the officials, quarters for the organizations, banquet hall, ballroom and other conveniences, and to have the building completed by June 1, 1927.

By unanimous vote the representatives of Yaarab temple to the imperial council meeting to be held in Los Angeles June 2, 3 and 4 were instructed to notify the imperial council that an invitation would be extended to that body at the meeting in Philadelphia in 1926 to come to Atlanta in 1927. The imperial council met in Atlanta in 1914, and it is believed that it will unhesitatingly accept the invitation when presented.

The business session was opened by Yaarab temple's famous chanters with a splendid concert, and after routine business was disposed of 60 applicants for membership were elected to cross the hot sands at the ceremonial session to be held in the auditorium Wednesday evening. Then, after a concert by Yaarab temple band, the mosque project was presented.

Bryan Heckled As He Speaks On Evolution

Remarks Draw Vigorous Protest From Congregational Minister.

New York, May 18.—(By the Associated Press.)—William Jennings Bryan's attack on modernism in religion and his spirited defense of the Tennessee law forbidding teaching of the theory of evolution in the public schools, in a speech today in Brooklyn, drew a vigorous protest from the Rev. J. S. Williamson, pastor of the King's Highway Congregational church, a member of the audience.

Mr. Bryan was alternately mildly hissed and cheered.

He asserted that he had brought the fight against teaching evolution into the open, and that "we are going out to win."

"We must win," he added, "if the world is to be saved."

Bryan Heckled.

Mr. Bryan had just said that the modernists cannot send missionaries abroad because they have no message to send.

"You are unfair to us—that is not true," declared Mr. Williamson from his seat. "I speak as a Congregationalist minister. We believe in majority rule, and each church is guided as it wishes in this matter. We believe in the freedom of the human spirit."

"Then I'm not talking to you,"

Depew Lauds Increasing Bond Between England and U. S.

New York, May 18.—(By the Associated Press.)—Although asserting that he could "distinctly remember 80 years of life," Chauncey M. Depew spoke at a luncheon of the Pilgrims' Society of the United States today with a vigor and a sparkling wit of which any man half his age might well be proud. The luncheon was in honor of the British delegates to the international police conference.

Throughout Mr. Depew's address, which he delivered in a resonant voice, giving little evidence of his 91 years and with firm gestures which forcibly pointed his remarks, the tenor of his thought was the increasing bond between America and Great Britain during the period of his life.

As an example of this growth in friendship, Mr. Depew told the story of a Des Moines glove manufacturer, who went up to King George at the Wembley exposition and said: "King, how are you. I want you to meet my son."

"Now, suppose," said Mr. Depew, "when we were closer officially, but not so close in spirit, some colonial had tried to approach George III and shake his hand. He would have gone to the tower and never got out. George V is a democrat, and he said: 'Glad to see you. Is your family well?' That's kin across the sea."

Speaking again of changes for the better that have occurred during his lifetime, Mr. Depew said that international relationships used largely to be made up of "royalty, parents and victories and war, but now the world is on a different basis. The people who have a solid interest are running it. We are trying to get away from war and to maintain peace and to promote industry, production, prosperity and happiness."

Mr. Depew said that the greatest of missions ever sent to the United States across the sea was that headed by Stanley Baldwin which announced that Great Britain intended to give every penny of her debts.

"The war had shaken the economical structure of the whole world," the speaker said, "and the people were in doubt as to what was going to happen, but when Great Britain said

DAHLONEGA PUPILS EFFORT TO BLOCK REQUEST CHANGE JUNE REFERENDUM IN PRESIDENCY HALTED IN COUNCIL

Full Investigation Into
North Georgia College
Asked in Petition to Board of Trustees.

Dahlonega, Ga., May 18.—(Special.)—A change in the presidency and a detailed investigation of the college is requested in a petition signed today by 84 out of 100 students attending the North Georgia Agricultural college here, which is a branch of the university. Mr. B. DuBose is president of the institution.

The petition is addressed to the board of trustees of the college, of which A. S. Hardy of Gainesville is chairman. Copies of which were mailed today to the chairman and other members of the board.

The students assert in the petition that the college "is operating under serious disadvantages; that it would be to best interests of all concerned to grant a change of presidency; that they do not deem it worthy while to return this fall nor to encourage prospective students to attend the college."

The college is one of the oldest educational institutions in the state, its history dating back to the time gold was mined here. Until a few years ago it was a military school. Dr. G. R. Glenn was for a number of years connected with the institution.

Following is the text of the resolutions adopted today.

"To the honorable board of trustees."

FREE GARBAGE CAN MEASURE PASSED

Mayor Sims Will Be Asked To Veto Measure To Install Cans With Advertising.

The now famous "free garbage can" measure, which in the past has been defeated by united efforts of the women's club and citizens interested in the artistic appearance of Atlanta's streets, bobbed up again Monday afternoon in council and was passed after a sharp parliamentary tilt.

Council approved the measure despite the fact that Mayor Pro-Tem W. B. Hartfield pointed out that the city attorney has ruled as illegal the proposal for the city to accept free garbage cans bearing advertisements. Though the resolution's illegality was cited, friends of the measure called for a vote to override the ruling and this was done by a margin of one vote.

The resolution authorizes the sanitary department to contract with Carl F. Hutcheson and Sam Saltzman to furnish free garbage cans to the city. Under provisions of the contract the cans are to be used for advertising purposes and the city is to be paid $7 a year each for the cans used in this service.

A consistent fight to inaugurate a system of free garbage cans, bearing advertisements, has been waged for some months past and has met with determined and successful opposition up to Monday, when the measure again was introduced without warning and passed.

The proposal now goes to Mayor Walter A. Sims and it is understood he will be petitioned to veto it in the interest of cultural appearance of the city.

FIRES FATAL SHOT WITHOUT WARNING IN RED OAK HOME

Young Wife Conversing

Manager When He Fires
Bullet Into Heart.

WAVE OF ROBBERIES CONTINUES MONDAY

Hold-Up and Fourteen
Burglaries Reported.
Alleged Negro Yeggman
Captured at Work.

His action believed to have been the result of a blow inflicted by a bandit who several weeks ago robbed the filling station of which he was manager and attacked him with the butt end of a revolver, J. Earl Cook, 25, of near Red Oak, Monday night fired a bullet into his heart in the presence of his young wife and died instantly.

The distracted widow told police that she and Cook were talking together, casually in their home when he suddenly produced a revolver, placed the muzzle over his left breast and fired the fatal shot without speaking a word.

Cook was dealt a vicious blow on the head by an unidentified highwayman who held up the gasoline station at 464 Highland avenue, of which Cook was manager, on May 3 just as Cook was closing the station. This injury is believed to have caused him to take his own life under such dramatic conditions.

Although an X-ray examination at Grady hospital immediately after Cook recovered his waned faculties and phoned for police assistance, revealed that the blow struck by the robber had not caused a fracture of the skull, it is believed that his mind became impaired as the result of ruptured blood vessels. Members of his family are said to have maintained a watch over him since the robbery, but were unable to prevent him from taking his life. Cook used an automatic revolver which was in his possession at the time of the robbery, and police state it was found by the side of his dead body.

Cook is survived by his widow, Mrs. Hazel Cook; his father, J. B. Cook, one brother, W. M. Cook, and one sister, Mrs. J. E. Johnson.

Bandit Wave Unabated.

In addition to indirectly claiming its first life in Atlanta, the wave of banditry surged forward unabated Monday, the day's reports of depredations including a hold-up and 14 burglaries.

In its war on desperadoes who have terrorized the city for weeks past, the police held in captivity an alleged youthful burglar, captured by L. L. McDaniel in his home at 79 St. Charles avenue.

The negro was discovered in the home by Mrs. B. S. Embury, who occupied an apartment there. Mrs. Embury screamed for help, and the negro rushed in and captured the negro, holding him until police arrived. The negro, who gave his name as Bonnie Jones and his age as 19, was held

Geneva Arms Traffic Parley Averts Crisis

Officials Abandon Plan To Establish Central Bureau of Control.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Geneva, May 18.—The crisis in the international conference for the control of traffic in arms and munitions, which had been created by America's refusal to have the league of nations' council appoint the central office for arms control, was averted today by a decision to abandon the plan to establish the proposed central bureau.

Representative Theodore E. Burton, of Ohio, head of the American delegation, addressing a special committee in charge of the question, insisted that the central bureau should not be connected with the league.

Virtually all of the other 10 countries represented on the committee adhered to the idea that no central international bureau should be established unless it is placed under the league's jurisdiction.

Confronting this impregnable wall the committee decided the conciliatory thing to do was to make progress by marching around it. Therefore, on motion of M. Lange, of Norway, the committee unanimously resolved that in its judgment the central office or bureau in the form previously proposed is not essential and that the

Modernists Planning Fight For Presbyterian Assembly

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
Columbus, Ohio, May 18.—The general assembly of the Presbyterian church, which for the purpose of church government, corresponds to the congress of the United States, is likely to decide within the next week whether a minister may still remain a minister if he answers "I don't know" or "I don't believe so" when asked whether Jesus Christ really died for the dead, walked on the water, and was born of a virgin mother.

The church will convene in Columbus for the next nine days and apply itself to the troublesome doubts and questionings that have become more and more clamorous in several denominations since the war.

Two Determined Groups.
The Presbyterian church will face its problems with two determined groups standing militant on either side of the question, and a third group in the middle. The fundamentalists who accept the Bible as divine word hold that Jesus Christ to be God must be omnipotent, capable of any miracle.

The modernists or religious radicals of the clergy, who have been most conspicuous in New York do not at all assert that Jesus Christ was no miracle worker. They do not claim that He would be unable, if so minded, to perform a modern miracle.

A generation ago investments and first mortgages on real estate meant pretty much the same thing to the average investor. Any other securities he bought he was apt to class as a speculation.

Real estate first mortgages have not stood still in the intervening years. Serial bond issues, amortization, the growth of powerful investment houses specializing in them, have kept the old-fashioned first mortgage fully abreast of the times.

Substantial investors are buying real estate bonds. Why not, when they can get up to 7% interest with safety, with 4% Federal Income Tax refunded? Why not, again, when they can analyze Miller Bonds through the Four Distinguishing Marks? Ask for Booklet B-1102.

GUILTY PLEA ENTERED IN BALTIMORE CASE

Baltimore, Md., May 18.—(By the Associated Press.)—Jesse E. Baker, president of the Maryland Drug Company, and William Cohn, another member of the firm, today entered pleas of guilty in United States District Court to indictments charging them with conspiracy to violate the prohibition act and bribery of an enforcement agent.

At the request of the district attorney sentence was withheld until after the trial of 10 other persons indicted in the same case, and Baker and Cohn were released on reduced bail of $1,000 each.

Following a raid by prohibition agents on the drug company's offices here 12 men were arrested in Baltimore, Washington and Atlanta. The company is alleged to have been disposing of alcohol withdrawn from government warehouses for the manufacture of lotions.

Two brothers, Neufeld T. Jones, of Atlanta, and Winfield Jones, of Washington, were indicted about the middle of April on charges of conspiring to commit an offense against the government in connection with the same case. Neufeld Jones was arrested here, and declared that the charges against him were originated by wet interests against which he had been operating extensively as an agent of the commissioner of internal revenue.

William Jennings Bryan, now one of the most vigorous churchmen in the United States, is coming to the assembly as moderator at this assembly, as numbered among the most tolerant members of the middle group said Monday that the modernists were outnumbered numerically.

However, this speaker admitted, there is a lively possibility that the New York presbytery, or group of churches, will be abolished in accordance with a resolution to that end submitted by the presbytery of Chester, Pa., and a new one established. "And this," the speaker said, "would start a ruinous court fight for the possession of the physical properties of the church in New York."

"Ia Ferguson of Hawaii" Mother of Seven Children

BY ARTHUR F. DEGREVE.

Honolulu, T. H., May 18.—Modest, alert and exceptionally shrewd, Mrs. Rose Kellinui, "the Ia Ferguson of the Hawaiian Islands," would like recognition as the kind mother of seven sons rather than praise as the territory's first woman representative.

The biennial session of the legislature was ending. While men, deep sleep and weary after days and nights of debate looked back in satisfaction, Mrs. Kellinui sat upright, listening intently to every measure presented.

Approved during a short recess, she reluctantly consented to discuss woman's place in politics.

"Women must be considered as dangerous rivals of men," she said, "because they have broken the crust of man-made politics."

"More women are needed in public life. Why? Because they are less prone to form alliances with large interests that stifle the aims of those who come here to look after the good of the people."

When you get to know New York you find it is a city of groups. Writers, artists, painters, all have their own particular meeting place where they come to discuss views of life mid congenial spirits and surroundings. One wealthy publisher with a mansion on Madison avenue holds a gathering once a week in a loft over one of his downtown bookstores. Here he meets a group of young writers and hears their views and ambitions. No money or influence could bring you an invitation to this gathering. If the host thinks it worth while to call for you, one of his friends will take you up casually one night.

The atmosphere is a mixture of Bohemian and intellectuality. Nobody puts on airs of superiority. Seriousness is the leitmotif, though a note of cynicism creeps into the conversation from time to time.

Representative Burton withdrew his amendment providing that signatories of the arms convention themselves organize the central office, explaining that he had offered it merely because of the American difficulty in approving any convention which creates an office to be appointed by the league of nations council.

Unnecessary Move.
He said he rather welcomed the alternative suggestion that there be no central bureau at all because such bodies are often unnecessary.

The resolution adopted by the committee was to the effect that inasmuch as the control of international commerce in arms rests on a license system or the issuance of similar documents listing importations and exports upon public sale, it seems superfluous to create a central organization. The resolution remarks that license and public sale can be assured by periodic and uniform publication by all countries of their exports and imports of arms.

The resolution now must be submitted to the plenary session of the conference for approval.

League officials emphasized that all member states are obligated to send arms information to the league and that arms statistics for the United States, which is not a member, can be obtained at Washington where such statistics are issued in pamphlet form.

Mr. Darrow said he and Mr. Malone were willing to pay all the expenses of the Tennessee trial "in order that day may triumph over night."

"Any man of ordinary intelligence could make Bryan in such a fight," the lawyer continued. "The Tennessee lawyers are good. They will not need help."

Mr. Malone said he and Mr. Darrow, chief counsel for the defense in the Leopold-Loeb trial, would attend the trial and assist in any way possible. As soon as Judge Neal informed them of the division of labor in preparing for the defense, he said, they would begin the work in New York. He thought it would be possible for them to carry on the preliminary work by mail.

The party leaves the autobus and walks along the crooked streets of Chinatown under leadership of the guide. His advice to stay close together and his way of standing off from the sidewalk ever and again to review his party, gives the country yokel with his girl the feeling that they are in a dangerous situation. It's all part of the game.

RIFFIAN GENERAL USES PROPAGANDA

Paris, May 18.—(By the Associated Press.)—Abd-El-Krim, leader of the rebel Riffian tribesmen, not only is mobilizing important forces in front of the French along the Ouergha river in Morocco, but is said to be utilizing an extensive, efficient propaganda organization behind the French. Marshal Lyautey, the French governor-general, reports from the troubled areas that he is taking steps to clear out from the pacified regions of Morocco the agents of Abd-El-Krim, who everywhere are inactively spreading the idea of revolt.

The armament of the Riffians, in the opinion of military authorities on the spot, has been exaggerated, while the value of the enemy infantry and intelligence service has been underestimated. The Riffians, these authorities assert, have some of the best sharpshooters the French ever have faced.

Abd-El-Krim has a few machine guns, which are manipulated by soldiers of fortune or deserters from the Foreign Legion; but thus far, as regards artillery, only one battery consisting of four guns has been discovered. French pilots say that thus far they failed to discover any airplanes in the hands of the rebels.

The French have suffered most of their losses from the sharpshooters. It is pointed out, however, that these specialists likely will prove less effective when Abd-El-Krim's contingents make an attack in mass, as is soon expected, on the two wings of the front, measuring about 125 miles in length, between the Moulouya river and the sea.

Up to the present Abd-El-Krim has succeeded in getting the tribes on the border line between the French and Spanish zones to take the lead in blow operations, hesitating to risk a blow to his prestige by a defeat of his seasoned Riffian troops. It is asserted that the tribes who have thus sacrificed themselves have received such a lesson that Abd-El-Krim will have to send Riffian regulars to the front in his next move, for which the French officers assert they now are fully prepared.

Immersion Fight Defeat Is Blamed On Rockefeller

New York, May 18.—Another battle in the endless campaign of Christian fundamentalists against Christian modernists was waged Monday when the Rev. Dr. John Roach Straton sought to discredit the Rev. Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick.

Before a conference of Baptist ministers, Straton three times moved that the conference reaffirm their belief in the Baptist tenet of baptism by immersion only, and three times the motion was defeated. Then Straton charged that the influence of John B. Rockefeller, Jr., the wealthiest Baptist in the world and a trustee of the Park Avenue Baptist church, had caused the motion's defeat.

The deacons and trustees of the Park Avenue Baptist church are trying to obtain Fosdick as their pastor, and one of the conditions to Fosdick's acceptance is that baptism by immersion be not required. Straton admitted that his motions were aimed at those who were endeavoring to do away with the practice of immersion.

Meanwhile Fosdick was addressing the alumni of the Union Theological seminary, where he is a professor. His subject was "The New Religious Reformation," which he described as "the contrast between the religion of Jesus and the religion about Jesus."

U. S. HISTORIES OF REVOLUTION ARE CRITICIZED

Swansea, Mass., May 18.—(By the Associated Press.)—A real son of the revolution was presented to the 38th annual congress of the National Society of the Sons of the American Revolution here today when Osborne Allen, of Dexter, Maine, a member of the delegation from Maine, was introduced. He was born in 1830, the son of James Allen, Jr., of New London, Conn., who enlisted at the age of 14 and served through the war of the revolution and also the war of 1812, dying at the age of 104.

Historians of the revolutionary period now in use in public schools throughout the country still leave much to be desired, Judge Wallace McCann, of Portland, Ore., told the congress, in presenting the findings of the committee on patriotic education.

Marvin H. Lewis, of Louisville, Ky., president general of the society, reported 13 new chapters organized during the year, including a state society formed in South Carolina with a membership of 250.

Six Coast Guard Members Guilty Of Rum Running

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

New York, May 18.—Internal troubles are proving handicaps to coast guardsmen blockading New York's rum row. Six members of the coast guard have been court-martialed for smuggling liquor and three for intoxication, it was revealed today.

Officers have refused to discuss the affair but it is known that 19 men have been confined for varying periods in the county jail on Staten Island awaiting court-martial, of various offenses. Six were convicted of smuggling liquor and sentenced to six months imprisonment and three got three months each for intoxication.

Shortage of Men.

A far greater handicap is the prospect of a shortage of men in the fleet. Fully 30 per cent, it is said, will not reenlist when their service terminates in July. Conditions on the coast guard ships call for unusually hard work and a few brief hours leave. There are sufficient to man the guardmen to seek other occupations.

The coast guard has found in the speedy rum running boat Cigarette, a foe which is all but invincible, because of its vastly superior speed, the Cigarette outdistances the fastest of the dry navy's fleet. It is reported to have eluded through the lines several nights ago and to have headed for the sea.

Blockade Effective.

The present blockade is continuing effectively, however, and reports indicate that within a short time fewer than half a dozen ships will remain of the 50 odd ten days ago.

A four-day cruise of the rum-running area by newspapermen showed that a billion-dollar group of rum smugglers was being combated by a $30,000,000 coast guard organization. To block off 385 foreign whisky ships of all descriptions which have been noted as having been on the row at various times the prohibition navy has 16 cutters, 20 dispatch boats, 203 patrol boats and 103 picket boats.

Officials believe the war will last long. And they are equally sure that no liquor is being smuggled into New York proper, or through New England and New Jersey.

Coast guard boats are believed to be gathering for a blockade of the gulf coast. Boats are being transferred from the Florida stations to waters adjacent to Mobile. Officials, however, refused to discuss the ship movements.

CAVE-MAN TACTICS USED IN ATTEMPT TO FORCE WEDDING

New Orleans, May 18.—Police received a report today that a man believed to be William Rumsey, 35, walked into the office of Taylor Seidman, 100, and after pointing a revolver at the manager, grabbed Corinne Walter, 20-year-old stenographer, and dragged her to a waiting automobile and sped off.

"Come on, we are going to get married," the man told the girl who tried to fight him off.

The girl's brother said that Rumsey had been trying to make her marry him but that she didn't care for him and had repulsed him.

Rumsey and Miss Walter formerly worked in the same office along with Police at once started search for the couple.

ABSINTHE HOUSE IN NEW ORLEANS CLOSED BY U. S.

New Orleans, May 18.—The Old Absinthe house, known to New Orleans residents and visitors since 1824, and operated as a soft-drink parlor since national prohibition went into effect, was closed up late today under padlock proceedings along with five other cabarets and soft-drink stands.

When charges were brought by district attorney's office that the places were illegally selling liquor, Federal District Judge C. R. Beattie signed a temporary restraining order against the places and ordered them to show cause why they should not be padlocked for a year. Similar restraining orders were issued a week ago against four other places.

Chivalry Lands Doctor in Jail, Two in Hospital

New York, May 18.—His chivalrous rescue of a lady in distress has landed Dr. Alfred W. Herzog in jail in this city, where knightly flowers almost as seldom as a century plan.

Herzog is charged with felonious assault in connection with the shooting of August and Peter Corbin, brothers. August is in a hospital with a wounded leg, while his brother is in a dangerous condition with a bullet through his abdomen.

The Corbin brothers, who, according to police, were under the influence of alcohol, attempted to call on Mrs. Anna Pfeiffer, who resented their attentions. She called for help. Dr. Herzog, who lives next door, heard her screams and ran to assist her.

Two Corbins, armed with a club, turned on the doctor, it is alleged. "I realized," he said, "that they would beat me severely and probably fatally, so I called on them to have mercy. They did not heed my plea and I drew a pistol, for which I have a permit, and fired four shots."

Mrs. Pfeiffer appeared in court with two black eyes, which she said she had received at the hands of the Corbin brothers.

FEDERAL COURT OPENS AT ROME

Rome, Ga., May 18.—(Special.)—Giving local and city officials credit for bringing about the condition, Judge Samuel H. Sibley, in district federal court this morning in his charge to the grand jury, stated that at Rome, as he had found at Columbus, a small docket awaited him.

"The United States government is more and more depending on state officials," he declared. He stated that the officers were diligent in enforcing the prohibition laws. "My mother left me one great principle that I shall always remember, and there is not a day that I am not more impressed with its truth. It is this: 'For God, for home and for native land.' We ought to enforce the laws for these reasons," he said.

He called attention to the large number of pauper oaths being taken by bankrupts and stated that a man must have no means or any method of raising them before he takes this oath.

"The respect of your duty can be summed up in three words," said the judge, "be a man."

Norman N. Burns, of the Rome Manufacturing company, was named as foreman of the jury.

Rome, Ga., May 18.—(Special.)—It is announced that the municipal swimming pool here will not be opened until May 30. The reason the pool has not been prepared for opening before this date is because of the cool weather. There is a large amount of work to be done around the pool, but the committee in charge expects to have everything in readiness on May 30.

"COURT MACHINERY IN VIRGIN ISLANDS" DECLARED BROKEN

Washington, May 18.—The American Civil Liberties union, in a protest submitted today to President Coolidge, declared the "court machinery" in the Virgin islands had "substantially broken down" and asked that Judge Washington Williams, of the St. Thomas district court, be removed or that some "appropriate action" be taken.

The protest says that Judge Williams, who was appointed from Maryland, sentenced Bothschild Francis, negro editor of The Emancipator, to 30 days imprisonment after refusing him jury trial. The prosecution, the president was told, grew out of statements appearing in Francis' newspaper which the judge considered libelous. Francis, it was added, had criticized the administration of justice on the island.

VESSEL RUNS AGROUND OFF NORFOLK COAST

C., to New York, went ashore early tonight five and a half miles east of the Chicamacomico coast guard station on the North Carolina coast. Coast guard men put off to the stranded ship but members of the crew refused to desert their vessel as they believed they were in no immediate danger. A cutter has been sent from coast guard headquarters here to aid the schooner.

ALLEGED CHAPMAN ACCOMPLICE HELD

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
New York, May 18.—Charles Dryden, of Springfield, Mass., alleged accomplice of Gerald Chapman in the robbery of a New Britain, Conn., department store, has been arrested on a charge of obtaining $4,800 from the Corn Exchange bank on a forged check.
Chapman was sentenced to death for the shooting of a policeman during the New Britain robbery.
Dryden is alleged by the police to have selected the department store for the robbery. He is described as a slim painter of Springfield.
Police said that Dryden, at the time of the New Britain robbery, was working in an advertising office run by Walter Shean, who was arrested at the scene of the shooting and later was the chief witness against Chapman in his recent trial at Hartford.
The extent of his alleged part in the robbery, police said, was in his slipping Chapman and Shean as to the store to be robbed.
Dryden was identified by the cashier of the exchange bank, who said he presented the forged check last February. He denied the charges.
Interest in the Chapman case was revived recently when John J. Phelan was arrested in New York on charges of grand larceny. Police reported he had in his possession bonds alleged to have been stolen by Chapman in his sensational holdup of a mail truck in lower Broadway and in the holdup of a Winton, Maine, bank.

Tortured for years by varicose veins

Chicago, Ill., Oct. 23.—"I had suffered from varicose veins for 2 1/2 years and had doctored continuously without results as I could not keep off my feet. The pain was so great that I could not sleep and I cried at night until I was completely exhausted. My hair was turning gray and I thought I would lose my mind. Last summer my son had a sore on his chin and Resinol healed it, so I decided to try it myself. In little less than a week I obtained relief and in six months the trouble was entirely healed. I cannot tell you how thankful I am—I am the happiest woman in the world and I owe it all to Resinol." (Signed) Mrs. Gussie Newman, 2424 Orchard St.

commended for the post. This nomination was seconded by Councilman White.
A record vote was taken and the roll call showed 22 to 11 in favor of Price, as follows: For Price, Aldermen Moon, Couch, Armistead, Carpenter, Bachman; Councilmen Wardlaw, Pennington, Slapper, Aven, Chosewood, Vaughan, Etheridge, Morris, Baker, York, Jenkins, Moore, Inman.
Seventeen indictments, including subornation of perjury, making false certification, uttering false certification, forgery and false attestation, were brought against Leonard W. Horton, master in chancery, Francis P. Dougherty, prominent attorney, was indicted on five counts individually and on four jointly with Horton.
Four joint indictments for conspiracy were returned against Horton and Dougherty and his law partner. Dougherty was indicted for subornation of perjury, inducing a committee perjury, although not actually committed, twice for uttering false certification of a public office, and for conspiracy.
The indictments came as the culmination of two weeks' investigation by the office of Attorney General Charles P. Sisson into the records of more than 100 indictments granted chiefly to residents of New York state. Dougherty and Horton earlier in the day had been ordered held in $50,000 bail each after they had pleaded not guilty to each of the indictments brought in district court to two charges of forgery on conspiracy in obtaining alleged fraudulent divorces.
Dougherty and Horton pleaded not guilty to each of the indictments when they were arraigned in superior court later. Dougherty was ordered held in $40,000 bail and Horton in bail of $50,000.

DEATH IS ASKED IN SHEPHERD CASE

would take at least a week.
Three jurors had been accepted tentatively by both sides when the court adjourned in the late afternoon, and Shepherd was led back to his cell.
Marks of Tragedy.
The marks of the long winter of tragedy were written deep on the face of William Darling Shepherd. From behind prison bars he has been fighting desperately against a wide and subtly interwoven web of circumstantial evidence, closing upon him. He grimly brands this evidence as perjury and conspiracy. But the evidence to him is a vast, intricate web of his own making. Six months ago he was hard-faced, square-jawed, with a certain dogged determination written on his features. There is a lassitude, a vague greyness, and a cynical resignation about him now. Yet underneath this first still burn.
Monday two women held the stage. One was Isabelle Pope, society girl whose life romance has been flung into a whirlpool of tragedy. Two months ago she left Chicago, broken in health, to rest on the Pacific coast, virtually in hiding to escape the publicity of the case. She returned to Chicago with energy and strength restored, ready to plunge into her part in the legal battle. Her eyes are older now.
"I want only justice," she said. "I'll tell you what. What Billy told me. Some things I know may be damaging. If Mr. Shepherd is guilty I want justice to be done. If he is not guilty, I want him to be free to go on." Looking for Justice.
Into her youthful days a fantastic tragedy has been written. Her part in the stage set of the trial is to fight for the dead.
Julie Shepherd, Junoesque matron, who, according to Isabelle, ruled her home, her husband and her foster son with an iron hand, is fighting for the living.
"The whole injustice of it stuns me," she declared. "I am not looking for mercy or sympathy. Only for justice."
She flamed up when talking to the crowds that struggled before the courtroom door.
"I hate it," she said. "I hate this morbid curiosity with which men seem to be accused."
There will be a strange scene in the courtroom when these women meet, pretty Isabelle Pope, with a story of a broken love and the memories of a man she did not wed, and Julie Shepherd, dominant middle-aged woman, who is standing beside the man she married 20 years ago.

"Wait!" shouted Griffith, holding up an arm. "Your attorney will give you a chance to talk."

Judge James A. McClure rapped for order, threatening to remove every spectator from the court room.
Governor's Statement.
In his statement to the press, made January 10, after publication of an alleged $500,000 pardon sale through Russell Davis to Pollman, Governor Davis had said that certain persons took advantage of "the unpopularity of my son" to inveigle him into some indiscreet act.
He had denied in the statement any knowledge of Pollman's visiting Russell Davis on the Davis farm in Bourbon county, but his own testimony brought out that he had been informed of the Pollman trip.
Pollman testified that he offered $125,000 to Russell Davis if his father would grant a pardon. Russell is alleged to have accepted from Pollman the $125,000 in a Topkis hotel and handed the paroled convict the pardon, bearing the signature of the elder Davis.
The former governor and his son are defendants in another criminal action based on the Pollman charges. The Pollman evidence was introduced in the present trial to show "possible guilty intent" of the governor. Jonathan Davis is being tried also on a charge of seeking a bribe from Oswald, although Carl Peterson is to be tried later on the same charge.

Providence, R. I., May 18.—Twenty-six indictments were returned today by the grand jury investigating the alleged "divorce mill" by which New York residents were alleged to have obtained divorces in Rhode Island. Seventeen indictments, including subornation of perjury, making false certification, uttering false certification, forgery and false attestation, were brought against Leonard W. Horton, master in chancery, Francis P. Dougherty, prominent attorney, was indicted on five counts individually and on four jointly with Horton.
Four joint indictments for conspiracy were returned against Horton and Dougherty and his law partner. Dougherty was indicted for subornation of perjury, inducing a committee perjury, although not actually committed, twice for uttering false certification of a public office, and for conspiracy.
The indictments came as the culmination of two weeks' investigation by the office of Attorney General Charles P. Sisson into the records of more than 100 indictments granted chiefly to residents of New York state. Dougherty and Horton earlier in the day had been ordered held in $50,000 bail each after they had pleaded not guilty to each of the indictments brought in district court to two charges of forgery on conspiracy in obtaining alleged fraudulent divorces.
Dougherty and Horton pleaded not guilty to each of the indictments when they were arraigned in superior court later. Dougherty was ordered held in $40,000 bail and Horton in bail of $50,000.

School Board Wins Clash in Council And Retains Power

A move to turn over to the school committee of council authority to handle the building of the new Hoke Smith school, on Hill street, was defeated in council Monday afternoon. The motion was introduced by Councilman Slapper and was placed on the table by motion of Councilman Russell.
The measure provides that the school committee should call for bids and investigate plans for the structure and report back to council. Councilman Russell said passage of the resolution would amount to an unnecessary humiliation of the school board.
Reorganization of the plumbing department in the office of W. A. Hamsell, chief of construction, is provided in an ordinance introduced in council Monday afternoon. The ordinance provides that the assistant chief of construction shall have supervision of this department.
On motion of Councilman Knight the ordinance was placed on the table for two weeks.

DEPEW LAUDS U. S. BRITISH FRIENDSHIP

"We will pay our debts" it had a tremendous psychological effect. If you understand psychology you can run the world."
Speaking of the international police conference here, which he praised highly, Mr. Depew affirmed his faith in the honesty of the world at large. "There are," he said, "a few trouble makers out to live by stealing, what other people earn, and by breaking down government. My friends, the place to stop communism is at its source—not after they have exploded a bomb at a cathedral."
Mr. Depew sprinkled his whole address with humor, which kept his hearers in a constant murmur of merriment, but which never for a moment clouded the true seriousness of his remarks. When he arose to speak he offered a toast to "the president and the king who are what the Pilgrims stand for." "No one," he said, "ever entertains police officials without some object in view. That is, the police are not the case with the Pilgrims. We have money in the treasury, notwithstanding what this luncheon will cost us, and our treasurer is honest."
"Everyone who knows a good story ought to tell it," Mr. Depew said at another point of his address. "I have a friend who was showing a Russian professor around. At the time of the revolution in Russia they seized the secret police and everyone's property for a few days. They were very kind. They saved a few professors and they made a pet of this one and sent him over here to lecture in our university."
"He was standing in the Grand Central station, when one of the light-fingered gentry took all the money he had. He refused to continue his lecture tour and said he would sail the next day for Moscow, where he said, 'property is safe.'"
"Of course it is, for no one has any."
In closing, Mr. Depew said: "Friends of the British empire, we extend to you our friendship and we know you will return to your good homes with good feeling and will work with us for the ideals of good government, good relations and good living."
Commissioner C. E. Gower, head of the Constables' association of England and Wales, speaking from the visiting police officials, said that the hospitality of Americans to himself and his fellow delegates would remain one of the brightest memories of the conference.
Discussing the sale of pistols as one of the most serious menaces in the United States, Commissioner Enright said that 85 per cent of the 10,000 slayings in America during the past year were by this weapon alone. Legislation against it will be introduced in congress at the next year, he said. The criminal, he added, is a common enemy that must be fought by all the power of civilized nations.
Griffith pressed the ex-governor in today's examination.
"Answer yes or no."
"Russell didn't tell me but I knew there was some trouble," answered the defendant.
"Did you make any effort to revoke the pardon after you had learned of the circumstances it was delivered?"
"No."
"Why not?"
"I consulted a very good legal authority and I was advised that I did not have to."
Davis had branded as false, on direct examination, Oswald's testimony that he had chatted with the young Hutchinson attorney in a Manhattan hotel last fall.
Cross-examined, he recalled that he had talked with Oswald in a Manhattan barber shop, and then admitted the barber shop "probably" was in the hotel.
Mr. Davis testified he became acquainted with Oswald in 1920 at a domestic gathering.
Attorneys expect the Davis case to go to the jury tomorrow or Wednesday.

tees of the North Georgia Agricultural college.
In view of the fact that there is a prevailing sentiment that the above named institution, on the whole, is declining; that the morale of the college is much below that of other institutions of like nature; that as it seems beyond the power of the present president to overcome these difficulties, and the undersigned students of said institution beg leave to submit the following resolutions for your consideration.
"Be it understood, however, that this is done with a full knowledge that the management of the institution is a matter of your own discretion, but since students are a part of any institution of learning, we feel that you will pardon our suggestions."
"Be it therefore resolved:
"First—It is generally conceded that no individual or institution can do its best work realizing that it is operating under a president who is not the best interest of all concerned, trustees, faculty and student body. Therefore, we request that you consider the institution a change of presidency.
"Second—We earnestly request that a detailed investigation be made of existing conditions of said institution. Our support could not be reasonably expected, either individually or collectively. We do not necessarily believe that the present president is a failure, but that we do not deem it worth our while to do so, nor could we recommend the institution to any prospective students.
The petition was signed by 84 students, in the nature of a round robin. The senior class is composed of 11 members, and all except one signed the petition.
In Coeducational.
The total attendance of the college is given as 100. It is coeducational, about 40 boys and 10 girls making up the student body.
Commencement exercises are to begin on Sunday, May 31, and the board of trustees is due to meet on Monday following.
President DuBose tonight declined to make a statement on the petition, but he indicated that he would be withdrawn by the students Tuesday.
DuBose has been president of the college for three years, coming here from Athens, where he had been teaching for 15 years.
There was no disorder today on the part of the students, who were interested in the resolution, classes going on as usual. Students tonight quoted President DuBose as saying the petition was withdrawn by 2 o'clock Tuesday, students who signed it will be expelled from the college.

ground from sheer old age and weakness. I could not find it unoccupied. Had it been used by some industry, or had a fire started in it, civilian or firemen lives would probably have been snuffed out exactly as they were in the warehouse blast.
Overloading of floors is supposed to have been the cause of the warehouse horror, and a fire marshal could and would prohibit such dangerous practices.
Officials who are interested in the fire-prevention situation and significant that the Decatur street warehouse which crashed with its firemen, and the unoccupied building that crumbled and fell nearby are by no means the only two structures in Atlanta that present dangerous possibilities at all times and are terrible menaces in case of fire.
If statements made there can be depended upon, there are old buildings in the downtown area that are definitely unsafe; floors that are overloaded, and conditions that a city of Atlanta should not tolerate. And in this particular connection, it was pointed out that machinery for proper inspection of buildings and regulation of floor-loading has already been set up by the city in its building code which became effective in February, 1924; machinery of vital importance, and which needs a hand to set it in motion.
Section 43 of this code deals directly with the matters in hand, its language being:
"In every existing building of Classes E and F, (largely business, manufacturing and office buildings) and in every new building, the floor of this code, the weight that each floor will safely sustain shall be computed by a competent person employed by the owner or occupant. Such computation shall be filed in the department of buildings with an affidavit by the person making the same, in such manner as the inspector of buildings shall direct, and shall give full information on which the computations are based. When the safe live load on an existing floor thus ascertained, the inspector shall post one or more copies of such approved live load on an existing floor thus ascertained, on each floor of the building designated by the inspector of buildings, and no floor shall be loaded in excess of the safe allowance mentioned in said posted copy."
If any attention is paid this law, no one was aware of the fact; but its same worth was universally recognized.

ALDERMANIC BOARD WITHHOLDS OK ON TWO MATTERS

The aldermanic board of council held a short meeting Monday afternoon after the meeting of council and concurred in virtually all action taken at the joint session. The board voted not to concur in a resolution providing for the city to furnish fire water to the Atlanta Woman's club for use in the swimming pool of that organization.
The board also declined to concur in a resolution relieving the Jewish Educational alliance from taxation. It was decided not to concur in these resolutions until further investigation could be made.

Winder, Ga., May 18.—(Special.) The condition of Mrs. Jettie Bowman, who last Tuesday shot and killed Guy Thurman, on the streets of Statham and who was removed Saturday from the Barrow jail to the Winder hospital, was reported tonight as being "very serious" and doubt for her recovery was expressed by hospital officials.
Since the shooting, Mrs. Bowman has remained in practically a state of coma, hardly uttering an intelligible sentence. She had also refused to take nourishment.
The shooting of Thurman by Mrs. Bowman followed the killing six months ago of the husband of Mrs. Bowman by Thurman, in her presence, and is claimed the death of her husband unbalanced her mind.

FREE GARBAGE CAN CONTRACT AWARDED AFTER SHARP CLASH

City council Monday adopted a resolution introduced by Councilman Saunders authorizing the sanitary department to contract with Carl F. Hutchison and Sam Saltzman to furnish free garbage cans to the city. Under provisions of the contract the cans are to be used for advertising purposes and the city is to be paid $7 a year each for the cans used in this service.
Passage of the resolution came after a sharp parliamentary battle. Mayor Pro Tem Hartfield declared that the city attorney had ruled the resolution illegal. He, therefore, held that it was out of order. An appeal from the ruling was made by the city attorney, but the resolution was passed.

COUNCIL FAVORS SALE OF PROPERTY NEAR STOCKADE

Recommendation of a councilman committee that the city sell a plot of ground consisting of 12 acres near the stockade to the Warren company for $15,000 was approved by council Monday. The company desired the land for use in doubling the capacity of its plant, which manufactures refrigerators.
Aldermen and Councilmen declared that the price is a reasonable one and that the property is not needed for any development or extension of the city golf course or the grounds of the Girls' High school.
An ordinance providing that neighboring municipalities be required to pay the same rate for water furnished them by the city of Atlanta as are paid by manufacturing enterprises located outside the city, was introduced in council Monday by the water committee. The measure was referred to the finance committee.

Confederate Vets Gather At Dallas for Opening Of Thirty-Fifth Reunion

Flavor of the 'Old South' Greets Visitors on Arrival in Dallas—Meeting Starts Today.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Dallas, Texas, May 18.—Bivouac tonight on a field of peace, old men in gray reconstructed the swirling battle line of a great war. Camp fires of the outposts of the Confederate veterans who poured into the city throughout the day were visible at the state fair grounds, where more than 2,500 of them again will "pitch their tents," for the 35th reunion opening tomorrow.

The attack came in unexpected force, but Dallas had thoroughly entrenched herself for the occasion and came off in triumph at the end of the day, for not a single old soldier was slighted in the general reception. All records for first-day reunion registrations were broken, according to Herbert B. Carpenter, executive secretary of the reunion committee, which worked all night receiving the straggling delegations and preparing for tomorrow.

"More than 2,000 had registered by sundown, and apparently this is not more than one-fourth of those who are coming," said Mr. Carpenter.

Flavor of Old South.
As the veterans arrived they were escorted to a large tent on the grounds of Union Terminal station, where they registered. A flavor of the old south, the south they knew when as lads they marched forth to war, met them when they entered the tent, for there, dressed in the costumes of the '90s was a bevy of young women to take their name, rank and address. From the tent they were taken by automobile to the fair grounds or to the homes of relatives. Many had reservations in downtown hotels.

The reunion really started in this tent, for it was there that comrades met comrades and it was there that the spirit which a thrilling cause engendered began again to bubble to the surface. The colors, the majors and the captains of those days were there with their gold braid and their decorations, and many a private, forgetting age and brittle bones, tried to snuff into a salute as he encountered an officer who had led him into battle. The night brought some right arms and a group of weary old men.

JUSTICE GILBERT GOES UNDER KNIFE

News was received Monday from Baltimore, where Justice J. Price Gilbert, of the Georgia supreme court, went for examination a few days ago, that he was operated on at 10 o'clock Monday morning for a minor trouble. The telegram stated that the operation, performed at Johns Hopkins hospital, was satisfactory in every way, that no complications had developed and that Justice Gilbert's condition was excellent.

Mrs. Gilbert accompanied her husband to Baltimore.

Rumors at the capitol Monday were to the effect that the supreme court would await Justice Gilbert's return before making public its decision in the case of John N. Holder, deposed chairman of the state highway board, against the other members of the board, by which Mr. Holder seeks to compel them to continue recognizing his authority as chairman and a member of the board despite the action of Governor Walker in removing him from office. Mr. Holder claims that the governor was without authority to take this action.

It was expected at that time, however, that Justice Gilbert would return to his office in two or three days. In view of the fact that he has undergone an operation, it is not likely that he will be in condition to travel for several weeks, and the court may decide not to await his return under the circumstances.

WOMAN IS GIVEN 3-YEAR SENTENCE FOR SHOPLIFTING

Miss Bessie Russell, 26, of 352 Whitehall street, was found guilty on a charge of shoplifting. Monday in the Fulton superior court and sentenced to from one to three years in the state prison in Milledgeville by Judge G. H. Howard.

Miss Russell was convicted on charges of stealing clothing valued at $35.40 from a number of downtown stores several weeks ago. Assistant Solicitor John Hudson conducted the prosecution.

MORE SHOWERS TODAY Crops Greatly Benefited by Recent Rains.

Following a rain of approximately an inch which fell over Atlanta and vicinity Sunday and Monday, promise of continued showers for today was made by C. E. von Herrmann, local meteorologist.

The rain which has fallen during the past two days has been of inestimable value to farmers of the state, Mr. von Herrmann said, and the prediction of further showers is made with the assertion that more rainfall will be of added value to crops.

War Mothers of 48 States Begin Eighth Annual Meeting

The eighth annual convention of the National Service Star Legion will be formally opened this morning at the Baltimore hotel at 10 o'clock, with Mrs. Henry P. Baker, of Hyde, Md., national president, presiding. The convention will continue for the balance of the week, with business sessions and entertainment features marking the program on each of the five days.

Delegates from all states in the union began arriving in Atlanta Monday morning, women who shared the pain and the glory of motherhood during the days of the world war and who have found, in this organization, a unity of interest and a new opportunity for service.

The national executive board held a meeting at 10 o'clock Monday at the Baltimore, approximately 50 members attending the session, which was devoted to arrangements for the convention, registration of delegates and discussion of plans for the coming year.

Driving Club Luncheon.
At 1:30 o'clock the president's luncheon was held at the Piedmont Driving club, with Mrs. Wilmer L. Moore acting as toastmaster and the Fulton County chapter as hostess.

At 3:30 o'clock delegates visited the Joseph Hahersham D. A. R. chapter house, where tea was served, and followed this by a visit to "The Wren's Nest," home of Fred Chandler Harris. Monday night there were sectional conferences and a conference of state and chapter presidents with the national educational director, in further preparation for the formal opening of tomorrow.

A brief national board meeting will precede the 10 o'clock session this morning, members being asked to gather at the Baltimore hotel at 9 o'clock.

Governor on Program

Governor Clifford Walker will voice the welcome on behalf of the state, while Mayor Walter A. Sims will speak for the city. Mrs. A. P. Brantley, president of the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs, will extend a welcome on behalf of that organization and Mrs. T. T. Stevens, president of the Atlanta Federation of Women's Clubs, will follow.

Hollins N. Randolph, president, will speak for the Stone Mountain Memorial association, and Frank J. Irwin, national commander, for the disabled veterans of the world war.

Response to the addresses of welcome will be made by Mrs. Henry P. Baker, national president of the war mothers' organization. The morning session will conclude by the appointment of committees and the making of announcements.

At 1:30 o'clock this afternoon Mrs. E. H. Van Ostrand will preside. Mrs.

Frank Nesler will introduce the special convention rules proposed and there will be a partial report by the credentials committee. The president's report and recommendations will be given at this session.

The afternoon will be devoted to a visit to the government hospital No. 48, on Peachtree road, and at 5 o'clock Mrs. Henry Baker will place a wreath, in the name of the organization, at Pershing Point.

In addition to the important business sessions, many delightful entertainment features have been arranged for the visiting mothers during the week. Tonight at the Woman's club a program of music will be presented, with addresses by Dr. M. Ashby Jones and Mrs. J. Barry Mahol, national chairman of the gold star division. Parliamentary for all meetings during the week will be Miss Rosa Woodberry. This morning Mrs. Sam Sibley will be color bearer and Mrs.

HOLLYWOOD The Marvelous!

Florida is a big state; it would comfortably hold New York and Massachusetts with room to tuck in Rhode Island. It is not only a big state, with a coast line as long as the entire Pacific coast of the United States from Canada to Mexico, but it is the last full-scale pioneering ground in Continental United States for the trail blazer, the broad-shouldered city builder and the permanent settler—the stayer.

New York, Massachusetts and Rhode Island can muster, roundly, 15,000,000 population. Florida has 1,000,000 upward; the settlers—Stayers—are only just beginning to arrive.

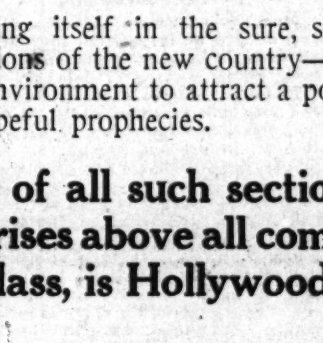

History repeats itself. It is repeating itself today in Florida as it has repeated itself in every mass population rush since the covered wagons of the Forty-Niners trekked to California. It is repeating itself, in Florida, as it has repeated itself in the transformation of every outpost of scattered settlers into a community of organized industry, commerce and civic order.

Thirty-three million acres of land that will raise anything that will grow in Holland or Denmark and will, in addition, coin into amazing wealth many superb agricultural products that will grow to such lush perfection nowhere except Florida—20 million acres of it still untouched by the palmetto grubber, and the balance only partially developed.

The questions men ask today about Florida's permanency were asked about Ohio when Cincinnati was as young as Hollywood is today; were asked, in the Sixties, about that "far West country" Iowa, and not so very many years ago, as American history goes, dire predictions were heard of the imminent collapse of that boom city on Lake Michigan—Chicago.

It is repeating itself in the sure, steady flow of discerning settlers to the choicest sections of the new country—the sections most favored by climate and scenic environment to attract a population growth that will outstrip even the most hopeful prophecies.

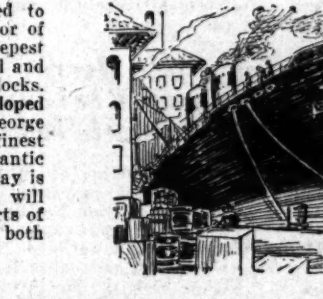

And of all such sections in marvelous Florida the one that rises above all comparison, as a diamond out-glitters glass, is Hollywood By The Sea.

$15,000,000 has been apportioned to make Hollywood's beautiful harbor a sufficient depth to permit the deepest draught vessels now afloat to load and unload at the city's municipal docks. This harbor is now being developed under the supervision of Col. George W. Goethals and will be the finest deep water harbor on the Atlantic Coast south of New York. The day is not far distant when Hollywood will be in maritime touch with the ports of Europe as well as cities on both coasts of America.

The one indispensable element that makes property values ascend to spectacular heights in Florida is Ocean Frontage—Hollywood has miles of it. A hotel and bathing casino is now being constructed that will rival in beauty, appointments, service and recreational facilities the finest in America or Europe. Fishing, surf bathing and all aquatic sports can be had the year around. The silver sands of Hollywood's beach will afford you and your family an endless all-year delight.

But Hollywood is not being built as a mere sun porch for America's idle. With its matchless deep sea harbor, anchorage and wharfage for the ocean's greatest vessels, and with its vast city pattern of commercial and industrial growth, Hollywood is destined to be the dominant commercial, financial and industrial leader of the Florida East Coast.

Hollywood is the liveliest, best year around, living spot in East Coast tropical Florida. As a place to work, to play, to see your homesite constantly increasing in beauty and value, to see your children grow up in healthful, zestful environments, to endow your work with an interest that never lags—come and live and prosper in Hollywood By The Sea. In the heart of America's winter playground, 50 miles south of Palm Beach, 17 miles north of Miami, on the Dixie Highway, the Florida East Coast Railway, inland waterways and ON THE OCEAN.

Hundreds Visit Art Exhibit And Interest Grows Daily In Lectures and Recitals

Program for "Artists' Night" Scheduled for Tonight Expected To Set Attendance Record.

Interest in Atlanta's second annual art exhibit, by the Grand Central Galleries of New York, at the Biltmore hotel, drew large crowds Monday to view the magnificent collection of paintings and sculpture and filled the main ballroom on Monday night for the program of art lectures and the violin recital.

Hundreds of visitors passed through the galleries on the arcade and mezzanine floors of the hotel during the day and it was the almost unanimous opinion that the collection this year is even greater than that which created such a sensation in 1924.

Tonight, at 8 o'clock one of the most interesting events of the two weeks' exhibit will take place when Wayman Adams, distinguished portrait painter who is here as a guest artist, will paint a portrait of former Governor John M. Slaton, before the audience. Mr. Adams will not take over one hour to accomplish this piece of work and Atlanta will be given an opportunity to see foundation methods by which a great portrait artist achieves his effects.

The program tonight is styled "Artists' Night," and in addition to the unique offering by Mr. Adams, about six other artists will make short talks. These will include F. Luis Mora, Paul Dougherty, Wilson Irvine and others.

On Monday Dudley Crafts Watson lectured twice in the ballroom, in the afternoon on "Living American Painters and Sculptors," and at night on "America's Contribution to Art."

In addition, Marie Dawson Morrell, famous violinist who is here for the exhibition, gave a short recital and F. Ballard Wilson, another artist, spoke in introduction of Mr. Watson. The collection now showing in Atlanta is the most significant of modern art collections in the world at the present time, Mr. Watson said. It represents the best work of all the greatest living American artists and no finer group of paintings and sculpture could possibly be gathered together in this or any other country, unless the whole world united to give such a showing, he added.

Leadership Predicted. Mr. Watson spoke not only of America's contribution to the arts of painting and sculpture, but also of the great American poets and the gift of synecopation in music, which America has given the world. He predicted that within one more generation America would take her place in the world of artistic creation in all lines, as the leader of a new renaissance. He paid a glowing tribute to France, which country, he said, had kept alive the knowledge of true art through ages of commercialism and science through which the world has passed, and said no modern painting failed to pay tribute, in some respect, to the great masters of Paris of the past few decades.

Today, after the exhibition opens to the public at 10 o'clock, the Atlanta Music club, Mrs. George Wright, president, will act as hostess and at night the Writers' club, James B. Nevin, president, will be host. Hostess organization Monday were the City Federation of Women's clubs. Mrs. T. P. Stevens, president, and the Georgia chapter, American Institute of Architects, Arthur N. Robinson, president.

The exhibition opens each day at 10 o'clock and remains open to the general public, without charge, until 10 o'clock at night. There are about 300 paintings and 150 pieces of sculpture. Lectures are free as well as special gallery tours, conducted by various members of the score or more of famous artists who are here.

LOEW'S OFFERING PLEASES THROUGHS DURING MONDAY

Headed by "Broadway Bits and Hits" an odd and entertaining sing-in and dancing revue, the new bill at Loew's Grand scored a rousing hit Monday and combined with the picture, "Zander, the Great," with Marion Davies, pleased enormous crowds. "Broadway Bits and Hits," offered by Marvin Franklin and company, introduces five pretty girls in most attractive costumes, and one young man who brings some fast waltzing of a unique and novel kind. Most of the dancing, however, is by the girls. Jimmy Locke and Joe Verdi, two "vay" comedians tackled the English language bravely and the more they butchered it the more the crowd laughed.

In a bright and snappy little skit "Sunset Serenade," Smith and Sawyer produced much laughter. The sketch contains numerous bright lines. A rather ludicrous dance also is presented.

Bert Grant, composer of many song hits, and Mildred Feely "The Irish College" won a big hand with their songs. Miss Feely has a very pleasing voice. The Oskas boys open the bill in one of the best juggling acts ever seen here. The Jap performers are champions in their line and surprised the crowd with clever comedy, something unusual in acts of this kind. "Zander the Great" is a motion picture which is a masterpiece of proportions and is distinctly different from the usual photoplays.

PAUL STEVENSON.

Artist Urges Study Of Art in Schools To Awaken Nation

America must pay more attention to beauty if she is to compete successfully in world markets, declared Wilson Irvine, distinguished artist who is attending the Grand Central art exhibit, at the Atlanta Biltmore, in an address Monday night at the regular monthly meeting of the women's division of the chamber of commerce.

Urging that more time be given in public schools to art study, Mr. Irvine said that beauty pays, not only in city planning but in industrial designing. A nation designing at present is a disgrace; a revolution can only be effected through the education of school children to a better appreciation of art, he said. In speaking of France, he said that in America, he said, he had seen the beauty of its natural setting and predicted that the city soon will have a great art museum.

Miss Santa Mueller, violinist, and Miss Gretel Mueller, soprano, gave several delightful selections, accompanied by Mrs. Kurt Mueller. Miss Santa C. Walters, president, was chairman of the meeting.

NEGRESS PLUNGES THROUGH MANHOLE ON DARK STREET

To take a step in semi-darkness and fail to find a sure footing, disconcerting, to say the least, but when one takes the step and falls a number of feet into an open sewer manhole, it is much more disconcerting—it is awful.

That was the thought of Minnie Banks, negress, of 52 North Ashby street, when she fell headlong into a manhole at Fraser and Clark streets Monday night, after someone had removed the cover, police report.

The negress was rescued before Call Officers M. B. Johnson and H. L. Turner arrived and was found lying nearly in a dazed sort of condition. She was taken to Grady hospital, where physicians said she was not seriously injured.

DR. DURHAM SPEAKS TO EXCHANGE CLUB

Dr. Plato Durham, dean of the theological department of Emory university, will be principal speaker at noon today at a meeting of the Exchange club at the Henry Grady hotel.

AMUSEMENTS

Loew's Grand Theatre—Loew's vaudeville feature picture. See advertisement for program.

Kath's Fourth Theatre—Kath's vaudeville and news reel. See advertisement for program.

Howard Theatre—Loew's Wilson in "Welcome Home" and other features.

Metropolitan Theatre—Constantine Talmadge in "Learning to Love" and other features.

Balto Theatre—Babe Daniels in "The Crowded Hour" and other features.

Cameo Theatre—Pola Negri in "Forbidden Paradise."

Palace Theatre—Constantine Talmadge in "East is West."

Alamo No. 2—Charlotte Merriam in "Pamper Your Youth."

"Welcome Home." (At the Howard.)

"Welcome Home," the James Cruze Paramount picture, which is playing at the Howard all this week, is affording the patrons of that popular theater a great deal of entertainment. "Welcome Home" is the story of an old man who goes to the city to live with his son and daughter-in-law. His ways are so vastly different from theirs that he is constantly misunderstood. The old man means well but the young people do not seem to understand him.

Anita Rosa, who appears on the stage in a number of very beautiful melodies, has one of the most beautiful voices that has been heard in Atlanta for some time. A voice of such beautiful voice Miss Rosa has a wonderful stage personality and her audiences have been immensely pleased with her offerings.

Alex Keese, conductor of the Howard Symphony orchestra, offers "Poet and Peasant" as the overture. "Poet and Peasant" is a comedy in three acts and is always popular wherever it is played.

The comedy, "Her Boy Friend," featuring Larry Semon, is a screen from start to finish.

"The Crowded Hour." (At the Rialto.)

"The Crowded Hour" brings Babe Daniels to the Rialto theater screen this week in a picture crowded with main title to final fade-out with everything that goes to make pleasing film entertainment. For those who like Babe to be a comedienne there are laughs galore; for those who prefer her in something more or less serious there is drama and heart appeal, and to top it all there is a sure-fire thriller.

The action goes from a pair of amateur actors "getting the hook" in a Bowery theater to a trench dugout in France, blasted by a shell, and every foot of film in between is filled with fast action.

Kenneth Harlan, T. Roy Barnes, Helen Lee, and others compose the capable cast. The Rialto comedy, "Love Goofy," is a Christie production. Hubner directs a splendid musical program.

Constantine Talmadge. (At the Metropolitan.)

Most girls between the ages of 16 and 20 are quite positive they know all there is to know about love. And most young swains of like age are equally sure of their own wisdom. But when it comes to the actual practice of love, they are all in a state of confusion. Admitting this latter fact, then perhaps the flapper generation cannot be held totally responsible for its exaggerated ego.

However, when youth passes to 20 and beyond, the tinsel of flapperism ceases to attract and love takes on a deeper meaning. It is this contrast that forms the underlying current of thought in the wholly charming comedy, "The Crowded Hour," which Constantine Talmadge brought to the screen of the Metropolitan theater last evening.

Neilbo Club Hears Prominent Visitor At Banquet-Dance

Gerald V. Van Deene, of Springfield, Mass., general manager and treasurer of the National Amusement company, was principal speaker Monday night at the first anniversary banquet and dance given by the Neilbo club of the Atlanta branch of the company at the club house, Spring and Simpson streets.

Mr. Van Deene, who is spending a week in Atlanta, spoke on "My Early Days in America." An address also was delivered by H. E. Steingrode, of Atlanta, who wrote the song adopted by the club as its own.

Hollow Log Saved Him From Death in Custer Massacre

Jay C. Spencer, 38, of Chicago, Ill., May 18.—For years it has been stated that no white man survived the battle of the Little Big Horn, in which Custer and his command were massacred by Indians. But a soldier, once a soldier and now a retired farmer, says this isn't true.

By hiding in a hollow log during the battle, he explained, he lived to tell the story. He was in the hospital in Miles City, Montana, where he was nursed back to health. Spencer says he has documents to prove his statements. He served in the army until 1890 and then began farming.

He was assigned to Custer's command. He narrates a thrilling story of the massacre. As the circle of Indians grew narrower, he says, he saw that there was no escape, and crawled into a hollow log in a thicket and was overlooked by the redskins.

The battle over, and the Indians gone, he wandered and was later given attention by friendly Crow Indians. They carried him to a hospital in Miles City, Montana, where he was nursed back to health. Spencer says he has documents to prove his statements. He served in the army until 1890 and then began farming.

He said that even those who opposed the acceptance of the Dawes plan are convinced that without it Germany would not have been able to establish its currency on a secure basis, and would have been obliged to wage a bitter struggle for her economic existence.

Herr Stresemann said, "We shall continue to carry out the Dawes plan the same manner as we have heretofore. Parliamentary majorities and governments may change but I can not conceive any administration which would depart from the program and policies we have accepted."

Discussing the non-evacuation of the Cologne bridgehead, Herr Stresemann said: "This injustice reminds us how far we are still removed from normal conditions of peace and how constantly we are obliged to take some defensive attitude against the intellectual orientation and methods of war time."

In the final analysis, it is not a question of whether the Cologne zone is evacuated, but of the provisions of the peace treaty but it is a question of whether a nation of 60,000,000 persons shall continuously deny the respect and equality of their rights."

JOHN CALVIN TODD DIES AT RIPE AGE

John Calvin Todd, 77 years old, of 202 Greenwood avenue, died Monday night at his home.

He is survived by his daughter, Mrs. Drew Liddell; one son, Hattie Todd; three grand-children, Mrs. W. A. Morgan, Mrs. Sheet Brinson and Todd Liddell, and one nephew, R. I. Todd, of Kennesaw.

McAdoo Praises Four Oldest Active Boxers Have 68 Scalps on Belts

Enthusiastic commendation of the campaign for the distribution of the Confederate Memorial half-dollar, now under way in all the states of the south, was received today from William Gibbs McAdoo, of Los Angeles, former secretary of the treasury, and Edward N. Hurley, of Chicago, former chairman of the United States shipping board, in telegrams addressed to Governor Walker.

Mr. McAdoo, himself a Georgian by birth, characterized the coins as "badges of honor," which every descendant of a Confederate veteran should possess. His statement is as follows: "Campaign for the distribution of the half-dollar minted under special act of congress of the United States as souvenirs of Stone Mountain memorial deserves the support of all who love to honor the great deeds of the south and the heroes who performed them."

"The proceeds of the sale of these coins are to be used for the completion of the Stone Mountain Confederate memorial. Each purchaser of one of these historic coins secures a badge of honor and helps to commemorate the valor of the men of the south who sacrificed their lives for what they believed to be right."

"The issues which led to the civil war have been settled happily in favor of a permanent union of the states, guaranteeing liberty, equality and security to all the people under the protection of democratic institutions, and the valor of the men on both sides who made this possible is common heritage of all."

"At the people of the south in particular accept the present opportunity to buy these coins and thereby secure the completion of this great Stone Mountain memorial as a tribute to their heroic sons."

Mr. Hurley's statement is as follows: "The patriotic men and women of our southern states who are working to renew that fine spirit which in the south displayed in battle the resolve, the wholehearted indorsement and unanimous support of our country in their efforts to make sale of half-dollar coins minted by congress, to be released July 3, secure the completion of the Stone Mountain memorial at Stone Mountain, Ga."

"The southern states have produced great leaders and statesmen who have reflected credit on our country, and we hope the southern people will enthusiastically support the distinguished group of men who are making this patriotic record and show by the results they have not forgotten the memory of those leaders who made every sacrifice for their people."

Reports Today. In furtherance of the drive, 100 Atlanta field workers will get out a luncheon at 12:15 o'clock today at the Chamber of Commerce building. The city organization has been perfected and the final reports are expected to show an enthusiastic response from Atlanta people, it was announced Monday by Alfred C. Newell, chairman of the Atlanta campaign.

Defense Refuses Change of Venue In Evolution Trial

Knoxville, Tenn., May 18.—Knoxville and Chattanooga are each making a valiant effort to push the trial of Dr. J. B. Scopes out of the limelight in which it basks as the battleground of evolution in Tennessee.

This was evidenced Monday when efforts were made to have the trial of Professor John T. Scopes, charged with violating the state anti-evolution law, moved to one of the two cities. The defense attorneys refused.

A Chattanooga newspaper Monday suggested that Scopes be tried in that city in the new Memorial auditorium, which is under construction. Coincidentally, the Knoxville chamber of commerce, suggested that the trial be held in that city. Knoxville has made the scene of the trial, which is scheduled for August.

Judge John R. Neal, Scopes' chief counsel, declined, however, to consider a change of venue. "This is an honest effort to test the law and we shall not endanger it by making it a circus stunt," Judge Neal declared.

3 PERSONS HURT IN TWO ACCIDENTS ON MONDAY NIGHT

Two traffic accidents were reported to police Monday night, in which three persons were hurt. A negro, one of the injured, received a broken leg. A case of reckless driving was made against William Scherff, of 375 Williams street, after his coupe collided with an automobile driven by Mrs. J. B. Knapp, of 90 S. Garner street, at Spring and Fourteenth streets.

Officers were told that Scherff was raising a window in the coupe and his car got to the wrong side of the street, colliding with the other machine.

Mac Turner, negro hotel porter, had his right leg broken when he was struck by an automobile driven by Howard Rice, of 86 East First street, at West Peachtree and Sixth streets. Turner told police that Rice could not avoid the accident, saying he jumped out of the way of a large touring car, which had a light into the path of Rice's car. Turner was taken to Grady hospital by Rice.

PRINCE OF WALES QUILTS RECEPTIONS FOR WEEK OF PLAY

Capetown, May 18.—The Prince of Wales has listened to so many addresses of welcome, shaken so many hands, smiled so many times and visited so many schools, municipal buildings, institutions, banquet rooms and the like that he needs a rest.

The royal visit to South Africa has been extended for one week during which time the prince will not hear any addresses of welcome nor shake any hands nor do any of the things the help of the throne and imperial ambassador is supposed to do. Instead he will play and none of his engagements will be official.

Wrestling at Carolina. Columbia, S. C., May 19.—A series of boxing and wrestling bouts are being held at the University of South Carolina this week. A number of the Gamecocks have entered the ring and met events. The preliminaries were run off Tuesday night and the finals will be held Thursday evening.

Lap Prizes in Indianapolis Classic to Total $20,000

Indianapolis, Ind., May 18.—Subscriptions for the Citizens Lap Prize fund, $20,000 added purse for drivers in the thirteenth international 500-mile automobile race, to be held at the Indianapolis motor speedway, Sunday, May 24, are pouring in rapidly. It is expected that the purse will be completed within a few days.

The purse is divided into 200 prizes of $100 for the driver crossing the tape first in each of the 200 tours of the 2 1/2-mile course.

It makes a race within a race, dividing competitors into two divisions—the "beat it" boys who go out for the lap prizes at a furious pace hoping to get a "hot" race and the "conservative" who shun the lap money and plan on the lion's share of the $50,000 speedway purse by winning the race.

Hebburn Deserts Motorcycle. Ralph Hebburn, sensational motorcycle racing star, is graduating from his saddle seat on the two-wheelers to the slightly more comfortable perch of the four-wheelers in the thirteenth international 500-mile race which will be held at the Indianapolis motor speedway, Saturday, May 30.

Hebburn has just been named to drive the new car, a Junior Eight, entered by the Locomobile company. Cooper was second here last year and won the recent race at Charlotte in the car Hebburn will drive.

Hebburn, who has been juggling his speed affection between motorcycle and automobile racing for several years had one chance to jump to big league racing, but dropped a ball. It was more than a year ago that Tommy Milton offered him a mount. Hebburn drove part of one race at Beverly Hills, Cal., being in third place when the motor broke up. He did not drive again.

He has excellent qualifications for a successful speed pilot and Cooper has no doubts of his ability. He is young, is used to speed, and is replete with judgment under fire. Along with those qualities he has unwavering nerves of the toughest and is expected to ride a long way in the coming 500-mile jaunt.

TITLE BOUTS DODGERS SEEK NEW PITCHER

New York, May 18.—The Brooklyn Dodgers, it is reported, are discussing a deal whereby they hope to unload some of their excess infield material on the Boston Braves in exchange for a pitcher.

Since Horace Ford was bought from the Phillies and negotiations were completed with the Cubs to bring the Midge, pitcher, or Ben Bort from Chicago where Maravilla returns to the Cubs line-up, the Dodgers have found themselves with eight infielders. It is understood that one or two of them will be traded to the Braves for a pitcher.

CONVERSATION MADE EASY

More Difficult to Talk When Not Sure of Being Right. Many disputes arise as to the correct usage of the words "who" and "whom," and the question of "who" and "whom" should be used is a question that should be asked by those who are careless as to the correctness of their language.

This makes it difficult for those who naturally are shy in carrying on a conversation. With them it is always a question of how certain words are pronounced, and where they should be used; what terms to avoid; and how to correct careless speech.

In the Dictionary of Everyday Errors, which is an exclusive special feature of the New Universities Dictionary, will be found practically all of the common mistakes that one can meet in a lifetime. The new department referred to will tell you how to correct errors and how to avoid them, and on the whole it is a very useful and interesting book.

The coupon printed elsewhere in this issue explains how to get this useful new dictionary—(adv.)

Marshall looked at the arrow and blushed. Mary was bending over her patient, bandaging him and admiring him at one and the same time. "Maybe it means him," said Bud, pointing to the unconscious form on the sofa.

Marshall's face darkened. "Maybe," he answered. "And maybe there are others. Lots of queer things happening hereabouts today. Three men chased me on horses on my way home. Quick, you and Miguel, join Ramon and scour the canyon to see if we have any more uninvited visitors. I take care of this one."

Their hands on their revolvers, Bud and Miguel darted off.

CHAPTER 3.

John Marshall watched his daughter's tender care of the injured stranger in the cabin with apprehension. The light in her eyes as she attended him told him that the handsome young stranger had awakened her interest.

In the last two years, as he saw Mary growing into glorious young womanhood, and realized she would soon become preoccupied with the vital affairs and interests of the little girl who had been content to live alone with her daddy, and sit upon his knee, he had been much worried.

So there were good reasons why the presence of the stranger who had dropped out of the sky disturbed him. Marshall had much to fear from the outside world. That was why he had come to this refuge across the border from his own home and country. This stranger might be an enemy dropped right into his camp. And more than an ordinary foe, if Mary was to become interested in him.

"Father, he's coming to," cried Mary exultantly. The stranger's eyes had opened again, and a smile was broader this time, as if he was glad to see that Mary was still there, glad to confirm the fact that the first time he had looked up into her face it was not only a dream.

Mary smiled back, and the stranger stirred, tried to raise himself on his elbow. Mary helped him to a sitting position, propping him up with cushions behind his back. Marshall came over and sat by the sofa.

The stranger nodded at the older man. Marshall stared at him thoughtfully.

"Do you feel better?" Mary inquired, with her engaging smile. "And could one feel badly, Miss, with such a lovely nurse?" the flyer asked.

Marshall continued to study the man's features closely. Finally he broke his silence by asking:

"Well, stranger, you might tell us who you are?"

"Terence O'Rourke, sir," was the quick reply.

"O'Rourke," Marshall repeated. "Yes,"

"This is really my country out west here," O'Rourke continued, "but I haven't been here since I was a boy. I was born in Ohio, but my father sent me to school in the east. I never saw him again. He was a prospector, and got killed while prospecting around in these hills."

Marshall continued to study O'Rourke, as though racking his memory to recall something from the dim past.

"Ah, yes," he said, stiffly. "O'Rourke—I seem to recall the name." Marshall's face grew very stern. Then he added, "But what interests me is the business that brings you around here now, O'Rourke."

Her father's abrupt inquisition of the stranger chased the sunny smile from Mary's face. She felt this was not properly hospitable, and she looked at her father reproachfully. But Marshall's face remained set and demanding.

Terence O'Rourke's smile also vanished, and his face darkened. After a moment's pause, he answered slowly:

"I hope I will not appear ungrateful for your hospitality, and the young lady's, sir, but as to my business—that is my private affair, and I cannot reveal it, I am sorry."

There was a look of courage, defiance and resolution in the young man's face, and the words were spoken with evident determination. His reply stung Marshall, and he looked to his feet angrily, staring fiercely and suspiciously at O'Rourke.

Agitated, Mary looked from one to the other, trying to think of something to say to smooth over the situation.

There was suddenly a loud knocking at the door, and cries from without.

"Mr. Marshall, Mr. Marshall," Marshall opened the door. Bud, Miguel, and Ramon marched in with a prisoner—it was the man called Buck who had sneaked into the canyon behind Marshall. All tried to speak at once.

"We've found another stranger, boss," cried Bud. "This bird sneaked in."

"After I take your horse to stable," broke in Ramon, "I find foot prints of strange hoofs in mud—I follow—I mean, Bud and Miguel with Kom's arrow—then we go look to see."

"Then there were no more footprints," interrupted Bud, "so we split up and took different tracks."

"And I found him, sir, I found him," Miguel triumphantly chimed in.

"Yes, you found him," laughed Bud. "You mean he found you. This hombre was hiding in the brush, where he saw Miguel and a bunch of men for his neck. We heard a yell and came running up, and this bird was sloughing Miguel and dragging him around in the dirt. Miguel was putting up a plucky enough fight, but he hadn't the reach or the weight of the hombre. Then this fool tried to fight the three of us, and here he is."

Marshall studied the face of the prisoner intently. Then he whirled about, and in a rage demanded of O'Rourke:

"Who is this man, O'Rourke?—your confederate—spying on me?"

O'Rourke met the glare in Marshall's angry eyes squarely, and firmly and calmly answered:

"I never saw him before in my life, sir."

A relieved expression crossed Mary's face at his answer, and they smiled understandingly at each other. Marshall turned back to the prisoner and fired questions at him hotly. Buck sullenly refused to answer his captor. Finally, giving it up for a bad job, Marshall ordered his three trustees to lock the man up in the stable for the night.

"I'll attend to him later," he said grimly, as they filed out, the prisoner, between them, under cover of their revolvers.

Marshall glanced sternly at Terence again. The crippled condition of the flyer reassured him that he was safe for the present.

"Mary, I'm going out and look about," he said. "There are too many funny things going on here. This has been a bad day, and my brain is reeling with worries."

And he strode out into the open.

CHAPTER 4.

A Lesson in Love.

"Down east, they don't raise any girls like you."

The shadows of evening were beginning to lower, and Mary was busy about the stove and the dining table, preparing supper. Terence, smiling his cheeriest, and now sitting up quite comfortably in an armchair, puffing at a cigarette, was gazing, rapt in admiration, through the haze of smoke at the dainty girl.

"Oh, but you're Irish, so I suppose that's Blarney," Mary answered, nevertheless glowing with pleasure. "You must be feeling very much better to be making up compliments, Mr. O'Rourke."

"But it isn't just a compliment—it's God's own truth, Miss," Terence demurred. "You're as lovely a sight as ever a man set eyes upon. It was like a dream to wake up and see you there—a dream that seemed too good to be true."

He paused to blow a meditative smoke ring. Then he added:

"And don't please don't call me 'Mr. O'Rourke.' Call me Terence, won't you?"

"All right, then, M. O'Rourke," she smiled.

"And can I—can I call you—'Mary'?" she finished for him.

"Ah, Mary, Mary, it's the world's prettiest name."

"Oh, but that isn't true," she argued. "It's just an ordinary name. There are so many much prettier names like Florence, and Gloria, and Eileen, and—"

"Mary's the prettiest of the lot," Terence interrupted. "The fact that it's your name makes it so."

She was setting the table. As she was starting back to the stove, he caught her hand.

"Mary," he said, looking at her intently. "You don't know how glad I am to have been wrecked here. My accident was a stroke of good fortune. I would have wrecked my machine on purpose if I had known of you. If I have no more luck I am already more than repaid for all my trip out here from the east. Mary—"

She struggled playfully to release her hand.

"Oh, you're a flatterer, Mr. O'Rourke," she said.

"Terence," he corrected. "Terence, then. Please let me go—the kettle's boiling over."

But he held her tight. "I'm boiling over too—with love," he said, fervently.

"I can't take that seriously," she countered. "But it is serious," he declared warmly.

"Oh, but it couldn't be—yet," she denied.

"Ah, Mary, Mary, quite contrary—listen to me," he pleaded. "Don't you believe that things can happen like that—all in a flash? Don't you think that it is possible for a man to know suddenly—in a moment—that a girl is—the girl has always been wanting and looking for? Well, it's like that."

"But the kettle—Terence," she insisted.

"Let it boil," he replied, clinging tighter to her hand. "Listen, Mary—Love is something that takes a man suddenly—like the measles—no, that's too unromantic—like, like—oh, like I don't know what. It just gets into you when you least expect it—don't you see—it just comes that way—I don't have to have known you a long time to know that I love you—I could tell that as soon—"

There was a rattling at the door. "It's Daddy," whispered Mary, her face flushed with shy happiness. "Now Terence, you must let me go."

He released her, just in time, as the door opened admitting her father. Mary rushed to Marshall and threw her arms around his neck, while Terence looked on enviously.

First she kissed her father for himself. Then she closed her eyes, kissed him again, and pretended to herself he was Terence. She was so excited in this, her first taste of romance, that she would likely have found herself actually in Terence's arms, if she could have dared. Terence, watching her, was experiencing similar wishes.

"Poor daddy," said Mary. "Do you feel better now?"

"A little," Marshall answered, but his tone showed that he was still ill at ease.

"Well, sit down, dear," she said, "and Mary will have supper on the table in a jiffy. I'm sure that both you and Terence—I mean, Mr. O'Rourke—(Terence was glowing inwardly at this slip of her tongue)—must be frightfully hungry."

Marshall was glum and silent through most of dinner, putting in a word only occasionally to keep up appearances, and try to make-up for the harsh words he had directed at Terence earlier in the day. Mary and Terence chattered away, but their conversation was confined to only the most general and non-committal subjects so far as their tongues were concerned. However, their eyes and their lips talked, too, exchanging glances and smiles, and said altogether different things that nobody else has any right to know. Mary wondered whether her father would overhear those silently said things, with his sharp eyes, and she worried because she could not keep the blushes out of her cheeks.

When they had finished dinner, and the men had enjoyed two of Marshall's cigars in a friendly smoking chat together—a sort of tentative peace—while Mary cleared up, Marshall suggested that Terence retire early.

"You'll need a good night's rest after today," he said, "and besides, I have some things I must talk over alone with my little girl."

His eyes rested tenderly on Mary. "I'll show you upstairs to your room," Mary offered.

The men said good-night, and Mary accompanied Terence up the stairs.

Both of these exquisite musical compositions were given prominence on the program and evoked considerable praise-worthy comment from the audience, composed of New York's gifted artists and members of the musical circles.

Mr. Wyly is known to Constitution readers as the writer of Broadway Bunter, this popular column appearing in the Sunday editions of The Constitution.

Fomey Wyly On Program In New York

The principal feature of the meeting of the Oglethorpe woman's board Wednesday afternoon at the Atlanta Woman's club, will be the reading of the charter which has just been received, making the board a corporation. This is a great epoch in the board and is another step forward in the progress of this splendid organization which is composed of some of the most representative women of the south.

The president of the board, Mrs. Katherine Conner, urges the attendance of every member at this meeting, as each member is expected to take an active part in the commencement exercises of the university, which opens at the university Thursday morning with the academic procession in which all the woman's honor is expected to take part.

This will be followed by the groundbreaking for Lowery Hall, the magnificent memorial given by a member of the board, the late Mrs. Lowery. A buffet luncheon will be served in the dining hall at the university, following the laying of the cornerstone for the two new units of Lowery hall, to which the entire board is invited.

Immediately following the luncheon, all guests will attend the commencement exercises at the First Presbyterian church. Every member is expected to attend these exercises at the church.

It is especially interesting that the principal address of the afternoon by Dr. Charles E. Mitchell, president of the National City bank, of New York, will dedicate the Lowery hall, in the name of education.

The fact that it was made by one of the officers of the woman's board makes it imperative that every member be present.

Miss Gertrude Kelley Weds Dr. Percy Lambright on Monday

Of cordial social interest throughout the city is the announcement made by Mrs. Gertrude V. Kelley of the marriage of her daughter, Gertrude Helen, to Dr. James Percival Lambright, the wedding having occurred Monday, May 18, in Annapolis, Ala., as the culmination of a romance which began some months ago.

Mrs. Lambright is the lovely and talented daughter of Mrs. Gertrude V. Kelley, formerly of Savannah, and the sister of Mrs. Frederick Eichelberger, of Cleveland, and Chicago. She has been a popular and charming member of the younger set of society since coming to Atlanta to live several years ago. She received her early education at the Convent of Saint Vincent de Paul in Savannah and later specialized in her chosen field of classical dancing. As a student at the Potter-Spiker School of Arts, she became recognized as one of the most accomplished and beautiful dancers in the state. She later became assistant to Mrs. Potter-Spiker, head of the school, and last week she starred in a brilliant performance given by the school at the Atlanta Woman's club for the benefit of the Tallulah Falls Industrial school.

The lovely bride is the niece of Mrs. Porter Fleming McCathern and John A. Moehrkke, of Atlanta, and of Baroness Eugene Oppenheim, of Paris and New York.

Dr. Lambright is the eldest son of Mrs. W. E. Lambright and the late Dr. Lambright, and he is the brother of Mrs. Page Helm Jones, of Pensacola, Florida, and William Lambright, of Atlanta. He received his early education at Tech High school, after graduating from the Southern Dental college. Since finishing school he has become prominently identified in business, social and fraternal circles of the city, possessing a wide circle of friends who will be interested in his marriage.

Motoring to Annapolis for the wedding were Miss Lucy Mower, who acted as maid of honor; William Lambright, brother of the groom, who was best man; and Abern Smith.

Following a short wedding journey Dr. and Mrs. Lambright will be at home with Mrs. Gertrude V. Kelley, 15 Howard street, Atlanta, after June 1.

BEAUTY CHATS BY EDNA K. FORBES.

ANSWERED LETTERS.

June H.:—A girl of 20 years with a height of five feet, four inches, is normal weight from 115 to 118 pounds.

Madeline W.:—You must be overweight to be getting a lump of fat at the back of the neck, and it is best to hide it by having your dresses cut somewhat higher in back until you manage to get rid of it. If the lemon juice has not made your hair brittle you are not injuring it by using it. Castile soap is an oil soap so it would naturally counteract the acid of the lemon in the last shampoo rinse.

Miss Ignorant:—Some time a deep line in the center of the forehead comes from straining the eyes. If you need glasses it would cause such trouble. Massage across the line using the finger tips much the same as if you were literally ironing out the line. Any nourishing cream will do for a massage, but the preference is for one made from vegetable oils.

Shirley:—If you have your hair marcelled with heated irons for a time it will dry out the oils and other secretions, and make the hair brittle and apt to break on the ends. A girl of 16 years with a height of five feet, four inches, is normal weight from 115 to 118 pounds.

Estelle S.:—In almost any large city you can find a plastic surgeon who can perform the operation of pulling up the facial muscles through a removal of a piece of skin under the hair. It amounts to taking a tuck in the loose skin, clipping off the section and sewing the edges together.

There are people who feel this makes them appear to be younger, as it smooths out the skin, but there is also the possibility of changing the entire expression of the face, even to the extent of giving it a lifeless or wooden look.

M. L.:—With a height of five feet, one inch at 27 years of age, you are at least 15 pounds overweight at 140 pounds. Eat less of all foods at each meal for a few days, and then begin to diet by omitting sugar, cream, rich pastries and some of the more starchy foods. In a few months of dieting this way you will be normal in weight.

Non-Fraternity Men Hold Junior Prom On Monday Evening

A delightful affair of Monday evening was the junior prom at which the Non-Fraternity council of Emory university entertained at the beautiful home of Mr. and Mrs. Preston Arkwright in Druid Hills. This event was of social importance in the college set, and about 70 couples were present.

The officers of the council are: J. Q. Maxwell, president; Porter Harvey, vice president; and Roy L. Gardner, secretary. The other members include: John Boyd, D. C. Baker, K. J. Smith, A. H. McGregor, E. L. Adams, O. A. Murphy, Henry Bullock, T. F. Rowden, Bruce Stephens, Rufus Cann, Eugene Gunby, J. I. Kidd, W. C. Haynes, W. H. Jones, W. A. Gardner and Hal Pearson.

Edwin Harrison will deliver an address of acceptance on behalf of the school while the Slaton family will be represented at the ceremonial by W. F. Slaton, who will deliver an address of presentation.

Other speakers will be W. B. Harbison, Mrs. J. C. McIlhenny and Professor Willis A. Sutton. Rev. I. Wilkie Collins will render the invocation. Among the guests of honor will be members of the Slaton family and members of the board of education.

Railway Mail Clerks Hear Address by Congressman Kelley Points Out That Atlanta Is Logical Point for Air Mail Depot in South.

Congressman M. Clyde Kelly, of Pennsylvania, author of the postal salaries increase bill, which recently was passed by congress, and head of the Braddock Daily News Publishing company, Monday night delivered the feature address at the jubilee mass meeting of postal employees of the southeast.

About 400 delegates from all parts of the southeast attended the jubilee, which was held on the roof garden of the Ansley hotel. Congressman William D. Upham, of the fifth Georgia district, introduced the speaker.

Other speakers on the program were W. M. Collins, of Washington, D. C., national president of the Railway Mail Service association; Thomas F. Flaherty, of Washington, D. C., secretary of the National Federation of Postoffice Clerks; and E. B. Nelson, of Nashville, Tenn., division president of the service association. P. V. Nelson, of Atlanta, president of the local division, presided.

Work Is Outlined. Speakers outlined the work of the service, told of the vast improvements which have been made and pointed out other proposed legislation. Mr. Kelly, who has been extremely active in the interest of the department during his four terms as congressman from Pennsylvania, told of other bills which he intends to push and stressed the importance of Atlanta getting on the air mail route.

The meeting was sponsored by the Railway Mail Service association and the National Federation of Postoffice Clerks. About 200 delegates to the annual convention of the Georgia branch of the National League of District Postmasters attended the meeting, after adjourning the first day's session of their meeting, which is being held at the Kimball house.

Advantages of the air-mail service, which also was established by the enactment of a bill proposed by Mr. Kelly, were outlined by the speaker, who urged Atlanta and other southeastern cities to "get busy" and form private companies for the handling of mail and parcel post. The bill provides for the operation of air-mail routes, which will be privately owned, but which will pay the government a certain rate on each letter and a proportionate rate for parcel post.

"Many cities all over the country are busy in an effort to obtain a route into their boundaries and Atlanta should get into active competition if she hopes to be one of these," Mr. Kelly said.

Atlanta's Opportunity. "This is Atlanta's opportunity to take the lead in a new field. She always has been a leader and she can not afford to lag in this great industrial stride of the past decade in which all sections of the country can become active participants."

The fight for postal employees of the United States has begun, according to Congressman Kelly, who stated that it is his one ambition to make employees of the department proud of their connection with the service. The increased salary bill, which recently passed, added about $300 annually to the income of about 350,000 employees.

"This increase is to meet the advance in the cost of living," Mr. Kelly said. "The retirement bill, which provides a pension of $100 a month after an employee has 30 years of service reaches the age of 60 and which was defeated in the last congress will be presented again. We also shall make an effort to move as far as possible the service from the influence of politics, making promotions on ability and service alone."

PHARMACY COLLEGE WILL GRADUATE 30 WEDNESDAY NIGHT

STATE QUESTIONS SCOPE BIG GAINS EXPENSE METHODS

Questioning the wisdom and legality of payment of subsistence for a state official at the capitol while that official is at the capitol, Sam J. Slate, state auditor, Monday submitted to Governor Clifford Walker a report on his audit of the records of the state board of entomology. This audit reveals that State Entomologist Ira W. Williams "charges both his traveling expenses when away from Atlanta and his subsistence cost of $1,349.25 while in Atlanta."

The charging of subsistence cost while in Atlanta is done by the entomologist, the report shows, as the result of resolutions passed by the board of entomology on January 4, 1923, which provide that "he shall be in charge of all field work, his activities covering the state at large, with expenses paid at all points in the state."

In his audit, Mr. Slate segregated traveling expenses of the entomologist from items of expenses paid while in Atlanta. Mr. Slate also recommended that calcium arsenate bought by the board for distribution to farmers be bought from Pennsylvania, told of other bills which he intends to push and stressed the importance of Atlanta getting on the air mail route.

The auditor suggested that the methods of handling automobile expense by the department be consolidated into one method by which the state would own the cars and pay for oil and maintenance. This method is now used by the department, but it is not a consolidated method, allowing a lump sum of $25 for use of a car in a county where a station is located, and an allowance of 10 cents per mile for travel outside of that county.

Postmasters Hear Governor Stress Education Needs

Following election of officers and the selection of the convention city for the 1926 meeting today, the annual convention of the Georgia branch of the National League of District Postmasters will end a two-day session which was begun Monday at the Kimball house. E. A. Meeks, of Scholls, Ga., president of the district, presided at the sessions Monday and will continue to hold the chair today until new officers are named. More than 200 delegates are attending the sessions at the Ansley hotel.

An address by Governor Clifford Walker in which he characterized the Georgia postmaster as a "man of the future" was the feature of Monday's session. He stated that unless something is done at the next session of the Georgia legislature the state will face an actual crisis in many educational systems.

"Something must be done during the next legislative session," Mr. Walker said. "We should never rest until every child in the state has a chance for the education which is their right heritage and we owe it to them."

The governor's address was followed by an address by Joe J. Johnston, chief postmaster of the southeastern district. E. K. Large, postmaster of Atlanta, who welcomed the guests; Frank Starnes, vice president of the Florida State League of Postmasters; Victor H. Stinesfor, of Jacksonville; and C. L. Hankinson, of McDonough.

NEGRESS IS HELD ON ARSON CHARGE; MAN INCRIMINATED

A negro woman was bound over to the state courts on charges of arson Monday morning in recorder's court, and a negro man, who served as a witness for the defense, was ordered held as an accessory, following his testimony before Recorder A. W. Calloway.

Millie Hixon, the negro woman, was arrested Sunday morning after a mysterious fire had destroyed six negro homes on Green street. Witnesses told police she had threatened to "burn up the whole section" because of some grievance against several neighbors and the people with whom she boarded. Her bond was $1,000.

Sam Ramsey, a negro witness for the defense, incriminated himself by his testimony, and Recorder Calloway ordered him held as an accessory under $1,000 bond.

SPOTS IN NEW YORK.

New York, May 18.—Cotton spot quiet; middling 23.65.

GAINS SEEN AT NEW ORLEANS.

New Orleans, May 18.—The cotton market was a comparatively narrow affair today until near the close when a burst of activity developed on covering by shorts. The general trend was upward after a moderate recession in the early trading, when July eased off to 22.14 and October to 21.38, or 19 to 21 points below Saturday's closing levels. The market started to improve at the beginning of the second hour and continued on the up-grade with occasional reactions until in the last quarter of an hour trading was brisk and prices advanced to 22.60 and 21.80 for July and October, respectively.

The early dip of practically a dollar a bale was due to disappointing weather and to generally favorable weather and crop news. The latter may have confirmed this favorable character of the weather, showing dry in the west and fairer wet in the east. The forecast was also favorable, predicting a warmer day for the west and thundershowers for the east.

Despite the favorable crop advice a fair trade demand developed at the lower levels, and prices generally advanced to 22.60 and 21.80 for July and October, respectively. The fact that the market rallied today in the face of the bearishness of professional sentiment indicated that there was growing resistance to the decline on the part of trade interests.

Exports today 21,949 bales.

SPOTS IN NEW ORLEANS.

New Orleans, May 18.—Spot cotton closed quiet; 25 points up. Sales on the spot 263; to arrive none. Low middling 23.55; middling 22.95; good middling 23.55; receipts, 5,831; stock, 155,715.

High Lights in Cotton Market

BY THEO. H. PRICE
Editor Commerce and Finance.

New York, May 18.—Just when the majority of people had become convinced that cotton was on its way to 18 cents, the market turned and as the week closes the undertone is better than it has been for some time.

The change is attributed to the census report of domestic consumption for April, which showed the American mill spun up more cotton last month than in any other April on record, and that they have recovered their confidence sufficiently to be carrying larger stocks than they held a year ago.

The figures were a distinct surprise to nearly everyone and they were so much at variance with the talk of curtailment recently heard that they severely shocked the shorts, who have been the chief sellers of the crop killing season.

But there were some other developments that have given pause to those who were reckoning so confidently upon a big crop and low prices next season. One was the action of an exporting concern in Texas in taking delivery of 5,000 bales of May cotton that had been quietly accumulated in Chicago. This cotton will be delivered in April, it is rumored, and as it was the first important transaction of the kind that has been undertaken since the Chicago cotton market was opened it has created something of a stir.

Its effect has been to put the Chicago May contract to a premium of about 50 points on the same position. In New York the cotton planters in the south can be financed by those who are not located in the market in which the cotton is deliverable. In this case it may be a combination of factors, but the result is that by hastening the day when southern delivery on New York contracts will be permitted.

But the Chicago transaction has also brought into relief the relative cheapness of the New York market and the trade is now beginning to realize that the 150,000 bales of cotton in this area may be a considerable quantity of cotton that they might be profitably merchandised by those who are equipped to handle it.

This may or may not be a remote possibility, but with July contracts in New York 13 points below New Orleans and 22 points below the Chicago price for July delivery in Galveston, it is a contingency that may get on the nerves of the "dicker" men on the summer positions in New York.

And finally there is the approach of the crop killing season. Roughly speaking, it commences with the summer solstice on June 21 and does not end until after the arrival of the autumnal equinox on September 23. Between those dates almost anything may happen to the crop and even if the season should be unintercepted propitious it may be made to seem unpropitious by the imaginative and resourceful protagonists of higher prices who are always alert for both weevil, drought, excessive rain, hot winds, cyclones, caterpillars and the many other destructive influences and to whom the cotton market is a constant prey.

COCA-COLA AMONG 40 ISSUES TO TOUCH NEW PEAK PRICES

New York, May 18.—The "bull" movement in stock prices today entered upon its third consecutive week. Continuation of easy money rates, hardening of commodity prices and increasing indications of trade expansion furnished the ground work for the advance.

Two score issues were lifted to new peak prices for the year, with the public utilities and motors giving the lead in the public of group strength. High priced specialties again recorded the most spectacular gains. Naah Motors soared 21.2 points to 187, a new record price and more than 200 points above the year's low. Mack Trucks soared nearly nine points to a new top figure at 173 3/4. Coca-Cola went to 109 1/8, a new high for the year, and a net gain of 1 1/2 points.

Net gains of 3 to nearly 7 points were recorded by Bush Terminal, Famous Players, Havana Electric Railway, National Lead, United Fruit, United States Cast Iron Pipe, Utah Securities, West Penn Power, and others. The group of issues was buoyed up by rumors of new super power projects and reports of high-current earnings by the principal power and light companies. As well as on Canadian oil in brisk demand, American Water Works continued its remarkable advance by moving up 3 points to a new high record at 62 1/2, closing near the top of the year. Edison Electric Power and Light certificates, Brooklyn Edison, and All-American Cable, also bettered their previous 1925 high prices. Virginia Railway and Power was one of the few outstanding weak spots, breaking nearly 17 points to 103 and closing near the bottom. Rumors of an early increase in Penna. Crude prices disturbed activity in the oil shares during the afternoon. Associated Oil standing out by climbing 3 points to a new 1925 high at 40. Elmore closed nearly 3 points higher at 65 7/8, and net gains of a point or so were recorded by the Pan-American issues. Pierce, Fennell, Standard Oil of New Jersey and Tidewater.

Certain-teed Products crossed 33 to a new high in anticipation of a new resumption of dividends. Other specialties for which there was a good demand were Martin-Rockwell, Motor Wheel Corporation, Arlison Corporation, Cress Carpet, Famous Players common and preferred, Coca-Cola, Union Bag and Paper, Advance, Stinson, Matheson Alkali, Dupont, Ward-Baking A. and Van Houtte Sili, all of which attained new maximum prices for the year.

Activity in the rails were confined to a relatively small number of issues. Frisco common and preferred and Chesapeake and Ohio were bid up to new peak prices for the year while Erie common, Missouri Pacific preferred, Canadian Pacific, Atlantic Coast Line and a few others sold 1 to 2 points higher.

The St. Paul issue held firm despite the announcement that the interstate commerce commission had ordered an investigation of the recent recapitalization proceedings. Wall Street was inclined to regard this as a bullish factor on the theory that it would prove the bankers' contention that the action was unavoidable and that the road, together with others operating in the northwestern territory, needed relief in the way of higher freight rates.

All money held steady at 3 3/4 per cent. The time money market, slightly easier, 60 to 90 days funds being quoted on a flat 3 3/4 per cent basis and the longer dates at 4 per cent. Commercial paper rates were unchanged.

The foreign exchanges moved within narrow and irregular limits, demand being held firm above $1.85, but French francs were slightly easier around 5.18 1/2 cents. Argentine exchange touched a new high on the current movement at 20.80 cents.

COCA-COLA AMONG 40 ISSUES TO TOUCH NEW PEAK PRICES

New York, May 18.—The "bull" movement in stock prices today entered upon its third consecutive week. Continuation of easy money rates, hardening of commodity prices and increasing indications of trade expansion furnished the ground work for the advance.

Two score issues were lifted to new peak prices for the year, with the public utilities and motors giving the lead in the public of group strength. High priced specialties again recorded the most spectacular gains. Naah Motors soared 21.2 points to 187, a new record price and more than 200 points above the year's low. YOUR files are more than office furniture. They are the machinery which makes your office work. Yet in a recent survey which Shaw-Walker made in the filing departments of many lines of business, we found this important fact:

Most of the files we inspected were basic misfits, or else were outgrown. We also found that many men were buying files without making sure these files would cut costs and speed up the finding of letters.

Shaw-Walker files are real office tools—"Built Like a Skyscraper" to last a lifetime. Then they're equipped to serve your particular business requirements.

Shaw-Walker office equipment comprises 2700 items—files, desks, safes, indexing cards, folders and guides. If you want a sweet-running office, send for a "Skyscraper" man.

State Councils In Child Welfare Work Are Urged

Macon, Ga., May 15.—(By the Associated Press.)—An organization designed to carry child welfare work into every state in the union was launched by the Child Welfare Conference of America today. The conference unanimously adopted the recommendation of a committee headed by Lieutenant-Governor Holloway of Ohio that state child welfare be organized with delegates to the conference as members.

The chief purposes of such councils will be to bring mothers and children's pension legislation and to find foster parents where possible for children now cared for in institutions. Recent discussions of conditions in "baby farms" in New York have shown the horrible evils of the mass system of handling babies in a most appalling manner. Dr. Holloway, of Ohio, said that the child welfare work was in a state of stagnation and that the time had come when the state should take the lead in child welfare work.

Mr. Weeks' general condition was described today as very good, but the complication of gall bladder trouble which is a recurrence of an old complaint has somewhat retarded his progress and disturbed the rest he has been enjoying.

"This can be done," he said, "if the friends, ministers, laymen, graduates and former students of Sparks college will get back of the undertaking and support it to the hilt.

"Never has this country been in greater need of Christian leadership and the only place to look for the training of such leaders is in the Christian schools. Sparks college is undertaking the accomplishment of this undertaking by the prompt payment of the Christian education pledges and especially those directed to Sparks college.

CONFERENCE CALLED ON TETRAETHYL LEAD

Washington, May 18.—Leading scientists, chemists and physicians will gather around the conference table here Wednesday to determine whether tetraethyl lead, the stuff that puts pep in the new Ethyl gasoline, is a serious menace to public health in the auto-infested cities of the country.

Because of the widespread use of automobiles in densely populated centers and the horrible effects of lead poisoning on the human system, Dr. Randolph Henderson, of Yale, says that the problem the conference will consider is "probably the greatest single question in the field of public health that has ever faced the American people."

Some have even visualized a slow plague, blown day by day from the exhaust pipes of thousands of automobiles into the heavy air of congested cities, extending over the country, if the use of lead in gasoline is not stopped. Lead poisoning is second to arsenic in its harmful results. Dr. Henderson was the first to call attention to the dangers of using lead in gasoline. He criticized the bureau of mines for its report in which it concluded there was no danger to public health in Ethyl gasoline, and said the investigation had not been comprehensive. The bureau of mines is just winding up a second investigation, which was undertaken because of criticism of the first one, which it has contended, however, was never intended to be the final word.

Recently, the Ethyl gasoline corporation suspended delivery until some decision was reached. The gasoline has been distributed in 27 states, but in some places its sale has been banned.

The French state railways' coal office in Cardiff, Wales, has been closed after 20 years of existence.

MEMORIAL PLANNED FOR NORMAN VICTIMS

Memphis, Tenn., May 18.—A memorial to the twenty-three persons who drowned when the steamboat Norman sank in the Mississippi river on May 8, will be erected here, it was announced today by Captain Carl J. Frost, director of the Seamen's institute, at Jacksonville, Fla.

The memorial will be a building, planned after similar institutes in other cities. Captain Frost said the room will be a chapel, honoring the lives lost in the latest Mississippi river disaster.

The magic of make-believe

GIVE a boy a toy pistol, and first thing you know he is playing robber—with a handkerchief for a mask.

Equip him with a Corona Typewriter, and just as readily he acts the part of business man or author.

Play is real life to a child—and that is why parents should provide playthings that start right habits of mind and body.

Every home should own a Corona, and every child should learn to write as early as possible. With Corona, a child will teach himself to read, spell, punctuate, and co-ordinate mind and muscle. It has a talent for writing. Corona will help bring it out. And just incidentally, the grown-ups will appreciate Corona quite as much as the youngsters.

Corona Four costs only $60. Easy terms if desired. Call or phone for demonstration.

Jury To Decide Annulment Suit Of Rhinelander

White Plains, N. Y., May 18.—The question of color presented by the suit of Young Leopold Kip Rhinelander for annulment of his marriage to Mrs. Alice Beatrice Jones Rhinelander will be decided by a jury.

Counsel for Leopold Kip himself presented a motion for the jury trial and it was granted Monday by Supreme Court Justice Segrave. Counsel for Mrs. Rhinelander, whose wife's status is endangered because her wealthy young husband claims it was achieved through fraud in that she failed to tell him she had negro blood, did not oppose the motion.

The court reserved decision on another motion asking that the case be given preference on the calendar. There was no reason, counsel for Leopold Kip said, why the twin should be "chained together" for another three months.

The son of the socially attitudinous Rhinelander family was imposed upon by a more mature woman, his counsel intimated, while yet a school boy.

"Rhinelander brought this action on the ground of fraud, alleging she was of colored blood, said former Supreme Court Justice Isaac Mills in behalf of Leopold Kip. 'I am sure that on trial of this action there will be no dispute of the fact, although we must prove it, as annulment cannot be secured on admissions, nor can it be bought.'

"Judge Mills knows that the Rhinelander millions cannot buy an annulment of this poor girl," replied Judge Swinburne of defense counsel. "Mrs. Rhinelander has not brought any action to disrupt this marriage. She regards it as legal and binding, and is extremely desirous of having her husband return to her."

"Mrs. Rhinelander has not brought any action to disrupt this marriage. She regards it as legal and binding, and is extremely desirous of having her husband return to her."

"Rhinelander brought this action on the ground of fraud, alleging she was of colored blood, said former Supreme Court Justice Isaac Mills in behalf of Leopold Kip. 'I am sure that on trial of this action there will be no dispute of the fact, although we must prove it, as annulment cannot be secured on admissions, nor can it be bought.'

"Judge Mills knows that the Rhinelander millions cannot buy an annulment of this poor girl," replied Judge Swinburne of defense counsel. "Mrs. Rhinelander has not brought any action to disrupt this marriage. She regards it as legal and binding, and is extremely desirous of having her husband return to her."

THREAT IN COURT IN ALIMONY CASE DRAWS $1,000 BOND

Alleged to have threatened his mother-in-law in the courtroom of Judge E. D. Thomas, of Fulton superior court, Monday afternoon, J. W. Adams, a yard engineer employed by the Southern railway, was placed under a $1,000 peace bond by Judge Thomas.

The alleged threat followed a hearing on the petition for alimony brought against Adams by his wife, Mrs. Minnie B. Adams, which resulted in her being awarded $500 a month alimony for herself and children.

In the absence of Judge Thomas, who retired in the afternoon to draw up papers on the alimony award, Adams is alleged to have shook his fist at his mother-in-law and threatened to kill her before night. An officer of the court reported the alleged incident to Judge Thomas.

CANADA TRIP TOO EXPENSIVE

Wellington, N. Z., May 18.—The lawn tennis association decided today that it cannot send a team to Canada to compete in the first round of the Davis cup play because of the heavy expense involved.

MORTUARY

A Word of Comfort.

For a time you felt you had been deceived; the God you trusted had failed you in your great emergency. Little by little the consciousness grew upon you that, instead of deserting you, He alone had proven sufficient to carry you through the depths of despondency and anguish. He alone holds the answer to your craving for certainty that your dear one lives and that you shall at length be together once more.

You will never doubt and repine again; you have found the Eternal God.

—Frederick G. Budlong.

General Pershing Not Considered For Senatorship

Kansas City, Mo., May 18.—A special dispatch to the Kansas City Star tonight from Jefferson City, quotes Governor S. A. Baker as definitely announcing he is not considering General John J. Pershing for the vacancy caused by the death of Selden P. Spencer, junior United States senator from Missouri.

"General Pershing never has been considered by me. He is not even a citizen of Missouri; he is a citizen of Nebraska," the dispatch quotes Governor Baker as saying.

Mr. Baker reiterated that he had already decided upon an appointee but would not announce the selection until after the Spencer funeral in St. Louis Wednesday.

Ice should never meet the water you drink. Ice may be pure when frozen, but dust, dirt, germs and the contact with the porter's hands make it dangerous when it floats and melts in your drinking water. Medical authorities, awake to this menace, urge laws prohibiting the ordinary jar-type water cooler. But, laws or no laws—there is today a wonderful new type water cooler which completely eliminates this distasteful, this dangerous situation.
